KU KLUX KLAN DRAGON OF INDIANA BREAKS SILENCE

Governor Gets Benefit of Check To Defray Expenses of Campaign—Executive Preaches Sermon on "What Doth It Profit?"—Says He Has Nothing To Say When Interviewed By the Press—"Little Black Box" Is In Limelight.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 11—UP—A check for $2,500 payable to Ed. Jackson, governor of Indiana, and an attached note stating the amount was part of a $10,000 contribution to the governor's primary expenses has been found in the "little black box" of D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan chieftain, the Indianapolis Times said in a copyrighted story today.

The check is styled the first concrete evidence in the political investigation in the state. No contribution of $10,000 was listed on the campaign expense sheet filed by Governor Jackson.

The Times said the check was signed by Stephenson and the note said: "This check is the first one-fourth of $10,000 given Jackson personally for primary purposes," and was in the handwriting of Stephenson.

At that time he was the grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan. Two years later, in 1925, he was deposed from leadership, and sentenced to life imprisonment on the charge of murdering Miss Madge Oberholzer. In September, 1926, he smuggled a letter out of the prison, accusing men he believed his friends of causing his downfall. It also charged that the Klan had made Indiana a feudal state and asserted that high state and municipal officers were its vassals.

The Times says: "There is every reason to believe that this check was written in the Noblesville jail by Stephenson between the time he was convicted and the day he was removed to Michigan City."

Prosecuting Attorney Remy and three others—special prosecutors, are in charge of the official Marion county investigation into "Stephensonism" and interviewed the ex-Klan head at the state prison recently, and Remy has filed affidavits against four Indianapolis officials, charging them with corruption. They are Mayor John L. Duval, City Controller William C. Buser, City Purchaser John Collins and Earl Garrett, former market master.

These charges were incidental to Remy's inquiry into alleged influence exerted by the Klan in the 1925 city election.

A dispatch from Osawatimie, Kansas today, quoted Governor Jackson as saying, "I have no comment to make."

The governor and his family are in Kansas vacationing with relatives.

VACATION ON LAKE.

Miss Hazel E. Groce, Mrs. Bertha Clayton and daughter, Miss Violet and Miss Esther Edith Peters, all of Columbus, have just returned home from a week's vacation at Cleveland, Cedar Point and Put-in-Bay. Miss Groce is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Groce of Circleville and will return to her home in Columbus July 17.

JOHN COMPTON DEAD.

John Compton died at the County Home July 12. He was born at Waterloo, Fayette county, October 4, 1851, and was a son of James and Susan Brooks Compton. One brother, Milton Compton, is living.

The funeral services will be held at the Christian church, Williamsport Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Springlawn cemetery.

The governor made his statement after he had been confronted with a photostatic copy of the $2,500 check reproduced by the Indianapolis Times. Governor Jackson had just preached a Sunday sermon at the Osawatimie church on "What Doth It Profit?"

Later he said: "Why I thought all these documents had been published long ago. From the very beginning I have adhered to a policy of saying nothing regarding these matters and I shall continue to do so."

Speculation turned today to the possible effect of the statute of limitations which outlaws ordinary prosecutions not commenced within two years of the occurrence of the alleged criminal act.

Attorneys said that the statute makes exceptions in cases wherein it can be proved that there was a conspiracy to suppress the evidence necessary to convict.

"WEST VIRGINIA FARMERS TOUR."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Hamilton — Reports that H. R. Beveridge will be named state prohibition inspector with Butler county as his particular territory, were heard here today. Beveridge was active in liquor raids under appointment of the Monroe, Ohio, mayor, until village courts were declared illegal.

Cincinnati — Two women were dead and one was in a Hamilton hospital today with a fractured ankle as the result of an accident one mile north of New Burlington, Ohio, late yesterday in which a truck loaded with hogs crashed headon into a northbound Cincinnati Dayton traction car. The dead are: Adam Stahlhaber, 60, driver of the truck and Pearl Jasbring, 30, both of Hamilton. Benjamin Beckett, 35, Franklin, Ohio, motorman of the car, suffered a fractured ankle.

Gallipolis — Water supply in Gallipolis is running low today owing to exceedingly low stage of water in the Ohio river. City Manager Hall issued an order prohibiting sprinkling of streets and lawns. Water in reserve for fire fighting is very low in the city.

New Lexington — The first move to reopen mines in the Hocking and Crooksville fields was in evidence today when superintendents of several shafts were checking up on supplies and inspecting entries at McLuney, Corning, Hemlock and San Toy.

Cleveland — Burrowing into secret recesses of Cleveland's underworld, Joseph Russell, "Smoked Glass" robber, was safely hidden early Tuesday from clutches of the law. Russell's gang in the haymarket district was believed by police to have sheltered the young "streak" in the home of a friend. A rival gang, detectives believed, was equally as anxious to snare the elusive robber.

Portsmouth — Mrs. Albert Estep, 43 and her two daughters, Trolley, 13, and Paulina, 8, drowned late yesterday at Salt Lick creek.

The creek where the bodies were found was six feet deep. There were no witnesses to the accident but it is believed the youngest child probably fell into the water and the other two attempted to rescue her.

A. P. SANDLES HAS HIS SAY ON LIBRARY

Says Governor Was Right When He Was State Auditor But is Wrong Now.

Governor Donahey closed the state library in the statehouse July 1, 1927. Governor Worthington, a Democrat established it in 1817. During the 110 years, 48 governors have been its friends.

Governor Donahey closed one of our most useful institutions. Now he wants to scatter the quarter million books, countless magazines, newspaper files, and other reference works over the state. Farm and city protest such action.

We have before us, Vic Donahey's 1919 annual report as state auditor. On page 94, under caption, "Ohio State Library," Vic said:

"The effort by some to have the state library moved to Ohio State university should not receive favorable consideration."

"The state library is a valuable collection of rare and interesting reference works. It is maintained for the benefit of every Ohio citizen. It should remain in the state house, where it is accessible to every person who visits Columbus."

This was Vic Donahey's judgment in 1919. He was right then. He is wrong now. As state auditor, he was the best Ohio ever had. As governor the joke is on Ohio. He should agree with his 43 predecessors and be a friend of the library.

A. P. Sandles.

ENTERTAIN ROTARY CLUB.

Robert Ernest Deringer, a Columbus tenor, entertained the Rotary club at their weekly meeting on last Thursday.

Mr. Deringer is one of Columbus' most promising young tenors possessing a power and pleasing voice, and his selections were received with acclamation. Mr. Deringer has been heard many times thru station WEAO at Columbus and the Rotary club feels fortunate in having this noted singer entertain them. He was ably assisted by Miss Ruth Louise Trout, at the piano.

IN HOSPITAL.

Mrs. B. K. Ludford and daughter, Marlene, visited J. D. Acord, at Mercy hospital, Columbus. He is getting along nicely and will be able to come home soon.

AUTO ACCIDENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Baown, of Chillicothe, returning home from Columbus driving a six cylinder Whippet hit a telephone pole Monday evening when the driver tried to avoid running into another car near the corner of Court and Mill streets.

The occupants of the car escaped injury. The wrecked machine was brought in by the Circleville Motors company. The pole had to be replaced by the Citizens Telephone company, as it was broken off at the butt.

TOP OF THE LIST

Antrim is nineteen years old, and is a graduate of the Peru (Ind.) high school. He is a reserve appointed seaman, first class, and received his instructions in the Twenty-seventh division of the United States naval reserve.

GOODBY KETTLE HOLES.

Sturm and Dillard, railroad contractors have begun operations on the west side of the Island road and are now taking the gravel from both sides on the old Lindsay farm. The curve in the road at this point near the Red bridge will be eliminated and the road moved south. This the firm has agreed to do and the county commissioners gave them the permission to cross the Island road at grade. The firm expects to put a washing machinery outfit and wash the gravel taken from the river's edge. This gravel will be used for ballasting. The company has moved a mountain of dirt to make fills in the low places on the Crites, Smith and other farms south of the Lindsay farm.

When a woman goes visiting nothing hurts her so much as her inability to impress upon her hostess the idea that she is used to something better at home.

FIRE DESTROYS REICHELDERFER BARN MONDAY

Erected Seven Years Ago by Executors of Nelson Hitler —Estate Cost $2,700.

The big barn on the farm of Cliff Reichelderfer in Washington township was destroyed by fire Monday evening. The barn was 40 by 36 and was covered with an asphalt shingle roof.

It was discovered to be on fire by Mrs. Reichelderfer, who saw the blaze from her kitchen window. The wind was in the opposite direction, and that saved the home.

The building was on the old Nelson Hitler home farm, which was purchased by Mr. Reichelderfer several years ago. It was built by George Steely and Thomas L. Hitler, executors of the Nelson Hitler estate, some seven years ago and was built to take place of one that was previously destroyed by fire. The one burned Monday night was constructed by C. M. Spaythe, formerly of this city, now of Springfield. It was a staunch building and it cost $2700 to construct.

This is the third barn to burn down on this farm. Mr. Reichelderfer is of the opinion that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion from overheated green hay. From four to five tons had recently been placed in the loft. Besides the hay, one hundred bushels of corn, a Fordson tractor, one set of harness and a plow were consumed. The only machinery saved, was a wagon and a binder.

The barn was insured for $2000 and the contents for $1,200 and the risk was carried by the Pickaway Mutual company, of Ashville.

A gentleman, who was attracted to the scene of the blaze, remarked that this was the third barn he saw burning between here and Columbus Monday night, and he thought all had the same origin, overheated green hay.

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Drunks Arrested.

Henry Campbell and Ed. Moran, drunks, were placed under arrest Monday evening at the corner of Main and Scioto streets by Deputy Carl Porter. They had a hearing before Judge J. W. Adkins. Campbell pleaded guilty and was given a fine of $10 and costs. Moran pleaded not guilty and was taken back to jail and his case continued.

Pavel Ulita and Earl Hadox drunks, found on the Walnut creek pike Saturday night were brought in by the sheriff's department and were taken before Judge Adkins. Each was given a fine of $10 and costs.

Contributory Charge.

Fred Murray was placed under arrest by the sheriff's department on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of his children, by consorting with a woman by the name of Mrs. Harris. He was placed in the county jail to await a hearing.

CLAIMS LARGEST CHURCH CHOIR

Detroit Church Believes No Other Lutheran Choir Exceeds It In Size.

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—Faith Lutheran Church of this city, Rev. Roy D. Linhart, pastor, makes the claim that it has the largest choir of any Lutheran church in the United States or Canada.

Since moving into its new $165,000 building, the church has developed a regular singing organization composed of eighty voices under the direction of Pastor Linhart, who was trained as a pipe-organist before he entered the ministry. The choir is accompanied by a large three-manual organ, which is located in three separate chambers. The seating capacity of the new church, which is connected with the Joint Synod of Ohio, is approximately twelve hundred.

Geologist's Idea Made
Fortunes for Others

The first to introduce the use of coal oil, or "kerosene," in the United States and Canada was Dr. Abraham Gesner, a distinguished Canadian geologist.
Doctor Gesner, after long experimentation, discovered how to produce oil that could be used in lamps for illuminating purposes, from bituminous shale and cannel coal. Though he gave the name "kerosene" to his discovery it was popularly called coal oil.
Following the discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania in 1859, and later in many other sections of North America, kerosene became the principal product of the distillation of the crude oil. Like most inventors, Doctor Gesner reaped little financial benefit from his discovery, which was destined to be the foundation of scores of immense fortunes.

A Little Learning

Five hundred farmers will sail in July for a 9,500-mile tour of the Old world. They are going not to visit cathedrals, art galleries, castles, mountain resorts and watering places, but to study the agricultural methods which have enabled European farmers to surpass our own. For instance, the superior European farmer sticks close at home patiently applying certain well-known principles taught by experience and government experts, and practically never tours America. He can't afford to tour America. And as he looks over his visitors he surely will conclude that American failure is a wonderful thing.

Bigger Babies

In a letter to the Journal of the American Medical association, a New York clothing manufacturer asserts that his company has been forced to increase the size of the dresses for one, two and three-year-old children. Persistent complaints that the necks of the dresses were too small have come to him during the past year for the first time in thirty years' experience. Most of the complaints came from California. This seems to show that the size of American babies is increasing. Californians may now point to another benefit of their glorious climate.

Cat Adopts Skunks

A mother cat with four kittens came to the farm of F. A. Jones at Brookfield, Mo., but Jones, having other ideas on the subject consigned the four kittens to the creek. The next day his small son informed him that the kittens were safe and sound. Recalling the traditional nine lives, Jones investigated and found that the cat had acquired four other kittens without doubt, but instead of their being some other feline's offspring they were of the genus mephitis, or common American skunk.—Indianapolis News.

Plowing by electric power is being tried out in Italy. The plow is anchored on opposite sides of the field. The cost of equipment and operation is high, and the method is successful only in large and level fields that are free from stumps and other obstacles. DEAD COMRADES

Honored In Plans of American Legion—French Cemeteries On Tour.

New York.—The "Second A. E. F." will be a "sacred pilgrimage and not a lark," James F. Barton, National Adjutant of the American Legion, declared, announcing that every one of the 18,000 planning to attend the Legion convention in Paris has registered for a trip to a battlefield and a cemetery.

The convention will be held from September 19 to 23. The advance guard is to sail August 10.

Contingents will follow until September 10, when the Leviathan, the flagship of a fleet of 24 Legion liners, will leave with General John J. Pershing and Howard P. Savage, Chicago, National Commander.

Mothers, wives and other relatives will accompany the veterans in large numbers. Mr. Barton sailed Saturday night to prepare for care of the delegates.

Pale Pink Chiffon Is Trimmed With Deep Rose

Displaying a smart frock of pale pink chiffon trimmed with deep rose of the same material. The voluminous sleeves are trimmed with the darker color in a futuristic design and the row of buttons that extend down the back adds a chic touch.

Separate Jacket Made of Choice of Material

There is only one special item in a woman's wardrobe this year which seems to run the gamut of materials. This is the separate jacket, either as a part of an ensemble or an added little wrap which harmonizes with the frock underneath. These little jackets, with or without sleeves, are a very important article in the smart spring wardrobe. And they run from the knitted sweater coat to the most filmy little coat worn over the sleeveless frock either to assist in changing the character of the frock slightly or as a charming affectation.

If the jackets are made of knitted fabric they have the cardigan closing opening quite far down, and fastened with a few buttons and having patch pockets or no pockets. If they are made of satin to wear over a printed or flecked satin frock, they content themselves with slit pockets, but also are sleeveless and show the frock underneath. Some of them are in the form of sleeveless waistcoats.

Ostrich Feathers Being Decorated With Diamonds

Ostrich feathers that are being used in Paris to such an extent, but seldom as natural, are embroidered with "diamonds" this year. Thick white and gray feather boas of ostrich are very short but extremely bulky, only just meeting around the neck, where they are tied by bunched ribbons, the bunch of ribbon ornamented with "diamonds," a cabochon made of brilliants making a center. Tiny brilliants are sewn to the "stems" of the feathers. Just at the ends, but not regularly, the effect intended and produced being that of frosting. In some cases, or of stray dewdrops in others. For the stage, the trimming of ostrich feathers used for gowns is also frosted with "diamonds," while fans made of ostrich feathers, whether white or gray, are also so decorated. Sometimes the sticks of the fans are encrusted with diamonds.

Cravat Silks Used for One, Two-Piece Frocks

Cravat silks they are called—these new silks with the small conventional patterns which are used by the best houses for smart little one and two-piece frocks. They are so different and so utterly charming that one is quite safe in predicting for them a marked vogue. Both dark and light backgrounds are featured, with the designs in multicolor or in a single contrasting tone. Frequently by the use of two or three tones of a color the compose effect is achieved.

In silks of this particular type one can readily see that the simpler the frocks the smarter they are. Occasionally a plain material is combined, but as a rule the chic depends entirely upon the clever and different use of the fabric itself.

Sports Costume May Be Worn for Any Occasion

Years ago, when automobiles were new, women used to dress for motoring. They crowded on all the dust-coats, gloves, veils, scarfs and goggles possible. A few years later they did the same kind of thing for golf. Today the sports costume is any costume which is comfortable and appropriate for the sport chosen. In most instances the same costume, with a possible change of footwear, is equally appropriate for the majority of day-time occasions outside the sport field.

Stripes Crossways

Spring sweaters are one of the important manifestations of the mode. They form a large percentage of the blouses on two-piece sport dresses in Paris.

GENERAL PERSHING

Reviews Citizens' Military Training Camp Cadet Corps.

Monday, July 4th, was a red letter day for the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison. It was an ideal day for the exercises which marked the eternal gratitude of all American citizens for the courage and steadfastness of our forefathers who made this glorious country possible.

Early in the morning the C. M. T. C. Regiment was formed and entrained for Indianapolis, where they paraded with and were reviewed by General John J. Pershing, the Commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War. The parade was one of the most impressive ever witnessed in Indianapolis and practically every spectator commented upon the soldierly bearing and the splendid marching of the C. M. T. C. Regiment. General Pershing, himself, said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen. He was amazed that so much progress could be made in so short a time and, as a personal tribute to the young men, who were voluntarily giving this service to their country, the General saluted each platoon of the regiment as they passed the reviewing stand.

Immediately after the parade the regiment boarded the cars which returned them to the camp where a good meal was waiting them. The candidates, whose parents had already arrived, were permitted to invite them to dinner with the company and most of them were surprised at all the good things they had to eat.

In the afternoon a number of noted and prominent men were present for the review and exercises which were held at three o'clock. Stirring and inspiring addresses were delivered by Mr. Paul V. McNutt, Commander, Dept. of Indiana The American Legion; Honorable Arthur R. Robinson, U. S. Senator and Hon-

At the conclusion of the exercises the C. M. T. C. Band, composed of one hundred and four cadets, played several selections, the last of which was the Star Spangled Banner.

BASE BALL

Circleville Gordon Tires defeated Fox Post Office Sunday at their grounds by a score of 11 to 3.

The Tires won the game on the 9th by scoring 8 runs on 6 hits and 2 bases on balls. Lane allowed 5 hits and helped win his own game by poling out a homer with two men on in the ninth. Davis with his hitting and Fox with his sensational fielding also starred for the tires. Herrin starred for Fox Post Office.

The Tires will journey to Lockbourne next Sunday to play the fast team of that place.

Albino Rats in London

An albino rat with pink eyes and white skin and hair has been found in London, and its origin is a mystery. One theory is that the rodent may have bred from tame specimens that had escaped. First Breech-Loading GunsThe War department says that the first recorded use of a breech-loading shoulder rifle musket was in 1831.
These weapons were known as the Hall breech-loader and were manu-

PHEASANTS TO BE SHIPPED
TO PICKAWAY*From One to Two Hundred
Will be Distributed Thru the Proper Committee.Sportsmen in Circleville and Pick-away county can find occasion for gratification in an announcement which has been made by D. O. Thompson, chief of the fish and game division of the state agricultural department.Mr. Thompson says the number of pheasants in the county will soon be increased by a supply of from 100 to 200, which will be shipped there. These will come to Circleville and be distributed from this city thruout the county in the most advantageous way.
The distribution will be under the direction of a committee, probably composed of local sportsmen, including members of sportsmen's clubs. At the head is to be Frank Hard, of Washington, C. H., game protector for the district of which Pickaway county is a part. The pheasants will be used for propagation.Mr. Thompson, in speaking of the matter said: "We are making a survey of the state, and Pickaway county is among those to which shipments will be made. This has been in mind for some time, and the supply will be sent as soon as possible.
It is to be as large as the supply will permit. I realize that pheasants are needed in the county and will do what I can to meet the desire of the hunters and sportsmen."

Control Disease of Cucumbers*Eliminate Agencies by Which Destructive Ailment Is Wintered.(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)The most effective means of controlling the mosaic disease of cucumbers, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, consists in the elimination of the agencies by which this destructive disease is carried over the winter.The cause of the disease is unknown, but diseased plants contain a form of infection which may be transmitted to healthy plants by such insects as the melon aphid and the striped cucumber beetle. The disease does not live in the soil and is not carried in the seed of the cultivated cucurbits, but is known to live from year to year in certain wild plants, some of which occur in most of the cucumber-growing sections.Wild Plants Carry Disease.The known wild plants which carry the disease are the wild cucumber, milkweed, pokeweed, two species of wild ground cherry, and catnip. The disease is carried over winter in the roots of these plants, except in the case of the wild cucumber which carries the infection in the seed. Insects feeding on these infected wild plants and on the cucumbers in the field spread the mosaic disease. In a number of fields where the average mosaic infection had been approximately 40 per cent, eradication of the wild host plants in and near the fields reduced it to 3 per cent.Before planting, the field itself and all land within 75 yards should be carefully inspected and all wild host plants, whether healthy or diseased, should be pulled out. If the cucumber field can be surrounded by other cultivated crops, the work of eradication will be simplified and insects are likely to be less prevalent.Plants Are Dwarfed.Mosaic cucumber plants are dwarfed, the younger leaves are mottled with green and yellow, and the fruits are mottled and misshapen;
the darker areas forming warty projections on the surface. When such plants appear early in the season they should be removed immediately to prevent further spread of the infection by insects. It is also advisable to use insecticides to reduce the number of insects. Where several fields are adjacent to one another it is essential that all growers co-operate in removing the wild host plants about their fields.Dusting for Insects Is Popular and EffectiveDusting insects has become so popular, and the dust guns so easy to use and effective, that dust is taking the place of liquid sprays. For ordinary garden use a coarse cloth sack tied to the end of a stout stick is a very effective duster for leaf eaters, but for some of the sucking insects that require a contact poison like nicotine a blower is best, for it will force the dust up under the leaves as well. You can get almost any kind of insecticide now in the powder form. The best time to use is very early in the morning before the dew dries off, or it will be needful to sprinkle or spray the foliage with water to make the dust stick. There are combination dusts that will serve for both eating and sucking pests, and most gardeners will be wise to use them and use them freely.Danger Spots in Roads Are Now Clearly MarkedDanger signs in the Minnesota system of yellow-and-black markings on trunk highways, have general meanings conveyed by their shapes in addition to the specific warnings they give.
Diamond-shaped signs warn of actual dangers on the road, such as a sharp turn. When the careful driver sees one ahead he always slows the speed of his car.Square signs mark dangers near the road but not part of it, such as schools. They put good drivers on the alert the instant they are sighted.Octagonal and round signs always require a full stop. The eight-edged signs are posted in most instances at intersections of arterial routes to avoid collisions. Round signs of the same import but in a class by themselves, are used to mark railroad crossings, all of which are always dangerous.Fresh Straw Is Liable to Stunt Plant GrowthFresh straw plowed under sometimes stunts the growth of the following crop, according to soil specialists of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. The straw acts as a medium for certain kinds of bacteria which multiply rapidly and which feed on the nitrogen that would ordinarily go to the crop. This explanation is borne out by the fact that when nitrogen is added with the straw, the harmful effects are prevented.In very sandy soils, injury appears before a shortage of nitrogen can make itself felt. Apparently, the straw also introduces poisons which affect the tender seedlings.The soil specialists of the station are now endeavoring to find methods of treating the straw so that both forms of injury will be prevented.REPOSED MIND WILL PREVENT
PERSPIRATION*Any Kind of Excitement Relaxes Pores and Causes Glands to Overwork.Word that your best beau has eloped with your girl chum, the shock that follows driving dad's new car into a ditch, and the embarrassment of being caught using the wrong fork at a swank dinner will moisten your hands and start the perspiration rolling down your forehead quicker than a game of tennis or a 500 yard dash."Emotion, any kind of embarrassment, and nervous shocks in general cause sweat," declared O. D. Neal, chemist of the Odonoro company of Cincinnati in discussing the scientific control of perspiration before a group of beauticians in convention at Chicago. "Any kind of excitement relaxes the pores of the skin and causes the glands engaged in excre-tion to overwork."Nature's method of controlling sweat is by keeping the mind reposed.
Pleasant thoughts are perspiration preventatives. Plenty of sleep, the right kind of food, fresh air and regular hygienic habits also help to keep the pores taut and the glands regulating the flow of perspiration normal and regular."The man or woman who perspires normally and evenly over the entire body may consider himself or herself an exceedingly lucky person. Excessive perspiration, on the other hand may be a symptom of some serious emotional state or general condition. When it occurs, a physician should be consulted. When it is of a local origin and not so pronounced applications of scientific astringents are effective."TO ESTABLISH A NATIONAL FOUNDATION*Elks Will Start Fund to be Used in Giving Relief in Times of Disaster.The establishment of an Elks' National Foundation to give help to whatever agencies might be chosen by the lodge was advocated by Charles H. Grakelow, grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E. before a meeting in Cincinnati formally inaugurating the 1927 reunion.The foundation, Grakelow said, could be started by a portion of the surplus earnings of the Elks' National magazine and then could be added from contributions and other sources.
The funds, he suggested, could be used in any section of the country and could be counted upon also as a reserve to extend necessary relief in times of disaster, such as tornadoes and floods."There would be no limitation to the development of the movement," he said, "the results to be obtained and the great influence it would bear on Elksdom's future.""A nation is as successful as her people, and Elksdom must keep pace in the growth of the nation so as to play the same important part in tomorrow's problems as she has so credibly done in those of yesterday and today."He would not have the national foundation start, however, until after the Elks national memorial headquarters in Chicago and the addition to the Elks National Home at Bedford have been completed.Glad to See Him Get His"I notice your clerks are in excellent humor today," said a customer to the owner of a Wichita store, relates the Eagle. "Did you give them a raise?" "Not so you can notice it," replied the store owner. "To be frank, it's because my wife has just been in and it tickles them to death to see some one boss me around."FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.6 room frame dwelling with bath,

OUT FOR RECORDSA remarkable record was made by one company of the artillery corps at a Western post. Four shots were fired from a battery of two 10-inch guns at a target 30 feet high by 60 feet long which was moving at the rate of eight miles an hour at a distance of about five miles away. All four shots were fired in a period of 1 minute and 20 seconds, and passed through a rectangle 9 feet high by 42 feet wide, three of them striking the target and the fourth passing four yards to the left of it. The remarkable accuracy of this firing can be appreciated when it is realized that a circle with a radius of 11 yards at the target would include all the shots.Another company fired four shots from an 8-inch battery at a 30 by 60-foot target which was moving at the rate of five miles an hour at a distance of about four miles from the battery firing. All four shots were hits, and the first shot cut the raft of the material target in two. A circle with a radius of 15 yards at the target would include all the shots. The interval between the shots was 36 seconds.FARMS FOR SALE.7 1/2 acre tract, fair improvements

Snappy Answer Left

Honors With Johnson

Samuel Johnson, who received $7,875 for compiling his dictionary, had almost exhausted the patience of the booksellers by whom he was employed, and was frequently urged to complete his engagement. Andrew Millar, who had the principal charge of conducting the publication, could not forbear acknowledging the receipt of the last sheet of the manuscript in the following terms:

"Andrew Millar sends his compliments to Mr. Samuel Johnson, with the money for the last sheet of the copy of the dictionary, and thanks God he has done with him."

To which Johnson returned this brief answer.

"Samuel Johnson returns his compliments to Mr. Andrew Millar, and is very glad to find (as he does by his note) that Andrew Millar has the grace to thank God for anything."—Market for Exchange.

The Impossible

The late Albert J. Beveridge, statesman and author, hated divorce or, rather, he hated the offenders who make divorce necessary.

Once, at a dinner in Indianapolis, the guests discussed with pity the case of a very admirable woman, the mother of seven young children, who found herself obliged to divorce her husband. There were obstacles, financial and other, in the way, and Mr. Beveridge said:

"A divorce like this is too bad, too impossible! It's like unscrambling an omelet to remove one bad egg."

Suit We're Born With

To find out how many yards of skin it takes to cover a human body, Doctor Takahira, Japanese physician, had a special variety of thin strong paper which adheres closely to curved surfaces pasted over his nude form. This was dried, then removed, cut into flat pieces and measured. In this way Doctor Takahira discovered it took 16 square feet of skin to cover him, although he is only 5 feet 6 inches tall.

That is another thing we shouldn't have to worry about from now on.—Capper's Weekly.

Defining Them

"Pa," asked little Lester Livermore, "what is an optimist?"

"An optimist, my son," replied sage Mr. Livermore, "is a man who lends his umbrella."

"And what is a pessimist, pa?"

"The same man after he has lent his umbrella."—Kansas City Star.

The Pessimist

VACATION DUE SHOULD TAKE AN INVENTORY

Get Up Early When the Sun is Rising and When Every Dew Drop is Diamond.

Vacation time is here. Vacations are due. One should, at this time, stop and take inventory of his physical and mental makeup. One should take a rest. It's the mode; it is due to yourself, to your wife, to the kiddies, to your friends, to your associates. One ought to get away with them or from them as the case may be. One needs a vacation to limber up that old framework that has assumed a posture made famous by a certain cod liver oil emulsion advertisement, to get rid of that gouty foot made so by too much overeating and sedentary ways of living, and to put oxygen in those old leather lungs which have been too full of crab producing carbon dioxide for the past ten months.

Get out and get away; get away and get out—out in the open, whether it be north, south, east or where Greeley told the young man to go and Coolidge went. Lindbergh went up, but his example would be mere monotony for most of us for we have been up in the air most of the year.

The important thing to remember is to take a vacation somewhere, somehow. A clock is run by its spring. Be sure that yours is always wound up.

Fulkerson has told us: "Students of physiognomy say that we are the saddest faced nation in the world. We see a smiling face about as often as we see a fire engine house for rent. Notice the faces of the people you pass in the street; it is very unusual to meet a man who is smiling. We have deep horizontal furrows in our foreheads, three vertical cuts between our eyebrows and two deep curves from nose to chin, which puts out mouths in parentheses. Our expressions indicate to the casual observer that each of us has a porous plaster which is peeling. Our faces look like the rough side of a washboard."

Most of us are too busy piling dollar on dollar. Most of us look forward to the day when we can retire and enjoy our money. But each time we add up the list of bonds and mortgages and figures in the little bank book we decide to wait just a few years longer. At last we lie on a sick bed with four flat tires, a carbon knock and a couple of valve taps. The doctor tells us that the only cure is a vacation.

Get out this summer. Get up early when the sun is rising and every dew drop is a diamond. Pluck a spray of flowers and inhale their fragrance. No perfumer has ever been able to catch that subtle odor and imprison it under a glass stopper. Watch the ruby throated humming bird poised like a living jewel before the open throat of a flower. No camera has ever been made fast enough to catch these rapidly whirling wings and reproduce them in a photograph. Down the lane a thrush sings his song to his mate on the nest. No man has ever been able to catch that low, throaty warble on a rubber disc and reproduce it under a scratching needle. Some things are too beautiful to be canned and reproduced at will. They will be yours if you take that vacation.

Take it. Enjoy it. Rest during it and come back this fall girded for grind that is making dollars.

"WILD BOY" BEYOND REACH OF SCIENCE

The recent discoveries of children supposed to have lived their lives among animals, and who consequently developed animal habits, add interest to the "Peter the Wild Boy" exhibit at Berkhamstead School museum, although there is no reason to suppose Peter was a wolf-child.

Peter was found in 1725 in the woods near Hamelin, in Hanover, where he had subsisted on the bark of trees, leaves, and berries for an unknown period. When found he was apparently about twelve years old.

A year later he was brought to England, but even under skillful tuition he was incapable of receiving any instruction and never developed the faculty of speech.

He died in 1785, at Axter's End farm at North Cross, where he lived since his arrival in England, and on a brass plate in the church is a sketch of his head drawn from an engraving by Bartolozzi.—London Tit-Bits.

Young Miss Must Be Smartly Clad

Dress for Morning, One for Afternoon and One for More Formal Wear.

Now that the modern debutante has turned naive and dons the long sweeping robe de style, her very youngest sister, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, has become the most sophisticated member of the family. The young miss between the ages of five and twelve is smartly clad this season in the present modish manner—her skirts are short to the extreme, her knees plainly showing—the silhouette, while varied, generally incorporates the waistline and the wide skirt, although in the width of the hem and the position of the waistline there is still room for choice.

This certainly is the first year that this young lady has been taken seriously. She is not put into a frock in the morning for play and into a similar, though fresh, one in the evening for dinner. The importance of the occasion has descended to this lowest age of all, and your youngest sister has a dress for morning, one for afternoon, and one for more formal wear—dinner or party. And her accessories change accordingly; she may wear sandals in the morning and for play, but with her "best" dress she will wear patent leather pumps with dainty round toes and sometimes buckles.

While looser in outline than those of the grown-ups, the children's dresses this year are trimmed with almost equal elaboration. A good deal of smocking is seen, especially in brightly contrasting colors, touches appearing at the neck, cuffs, pockets and empire yokes. Embroidery is frequent in silk or wool, depending on the function of the frock, while yokes, belts of fancy leathers, crocheted buttons and other novel additions would captivate the most blasé child in the country. Plaited ruffles are an occasional treatment, while insets and collars of lace are very dainty on the party frocks. Pockets placed a surprisingly brief distance above the hem are often cut in curious shapes, and trimmed in an original fashion with ruffles and embroidery.

Sleeves may be long or short—the tots choose them short, so that they will not interfere with their mysterious and important activities, while the more mature imitate their elders by adhering to the long sleeve. Materials vary—simple play costumes appear in printed cottons for the very youngest, flannel and jersey for the little girl of school age. For party wear, however, the fabrics are closely akin to those used in adults' clothing—georgettes in soft color or white—crepe de chine, tulle, taffeta or satin.

To such an extent indeed has this sophistication become the dominant note in the little maid's wardrobe, at least in her party frocks, that the Paris tres jeunes filles have gone so far as to adopt the square fringed shawls assumed by the older generation for evening wear. The smart Parisiennes, aged three, now wrap themselves in squares of silk crepe covered with Italian wool embroidery.

Chinese Embroidery Enhances Faile Dress

This beautiful gown of lettuce green seeded faille is trimmed with black and white Chinese embroidery. The hat is of the leghorn type, with flowers stitched in the same shade of green.

Variety of Colors for Women's Day-Time Frocks

Soft greens and very light tans are fashionable colors for silk day-time frocks. Sometimes three tones of green are combined in the fashionable composite color schemes. Such hues as pistache, gooseberry green and palmetto, are pale greens, just the color of spring foliage. The tans include light ecru, such as Mother Goose and monkey skin, a pinkish beige tone. Cornsilk yellow, a light gold, is used for many silk dresses by leading designers. Black and white plaid skirts will be worn with Castilian red jumpers for sport wear.

DOUGLAS FIR TREE MAKES MOVING HOME

Large Log Nine Feet Across is Hollowed Out and Makes House on Truck.

When E. A. Wade, formerly a Mississippi valley farmer, but in recent years a resident of Washington state, decided to come back to the central states for a visit, he went into the forests of the Pacific northwest, got a big Douglas fir log, hollowed it out and made his own traveling home. Mounting this on a ton and a half truck and trailer he bundled Mrs. Wade and the family possessions inside and took to the highways. This unusual home, 16 feet long and nine feet high, is a comfortable two room apartment on wheels and was in this city Tuesday.

This, is the largest log ever seen in this section, is arousing great interest everywhere, Wade said, especially with school children and their teachers. When we found, while traveling in California, that his home created such a sensation among children and the school authorities, he collected some special forestry information, pictures, samples of west coast woods, and prepared a lecture.

Now when he gets in the neighborhood of a school he stops and gives the youngsters a treat.

The tree, a Douglas fir, from which Wade took the log for his house, grew in the Grays Harbor country of western Washington. It furnished nine more logs, each 22 feet in length. This tree was 311 feet high and contained about 50,000 board feet of lumber. The Wades have named their house "Columbus" because the tree was found to be 434 years old, having started to grow the year America was discovered.

The 9x16 foot log from which Wade made his home on wheels contained 6,580 board feet of lumber, nearly all heartwood. First, a two-inch hole was bored thru the center, then a four foot hole was burned. An electric buzz saw and wedges were then used. The job was finished with adzes.

The interior was then transformed into a modern two room apartment with built-in breakfast nook, cupboard, and wardrobe. Two beds fold up against the wall and there are electric lights and an oil stove for cooking.

Big trees like one from which Wade made his home are not unusual in the Pacific northwest and some are much larger than this one. The forest service measured one Douglas fir last fall near Mineral, Washington that was 15 feet, four inches in diameter and more than 1000 years old.

THE LIVE WIRE SEWING CLUB HAD MEETING

Good Program Was Rendered --Next Meeting Will be on July 10 in Williamsport.

The sixth meeting of the Live Wire Sewing club, of Deercreek and Wayne townships, was held at Mt. Pleasant church, July 6.

The meeting was called to order by President Mildred Warner. Ten members present answered roll call by naming a game. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved by the club.

After the business session a program was given; Song, club demonstrations, Elizabeth Warner, Mildred Nobel and Claribel Rihl. The club pledge was then given by the members.

The next meeting will be held at the Williamsport school building Tuesday afternoon, July 19. After the meeting everyone adjourned to the yard where games were enjoyed by all.

Airplane's Slowest Speed

The lowest rate of speed at which an airplane can travel and stay in the air would depend upon the plane. Roughly, it would be from 40 to 50 miles per hour. The lowest air speed is that speed just above the starting point. The stalling point is at the point where the air lift on the wings is less than the weight of the airplane, practically little above take-off speed, which is 40 to 50 miles.

AMUSEMENTS

The Metropolitan screen is the proud possessor of a first rate melodrama this week. "Blind Alleys," presents a new departure for Tom Meighan but one in which he wins new honors. As the title suggests, "Blind Alleys" tells the tale of two people, how they become separated and then, after vainly walking thru various "blind alleys" finally find themselves reunited after all seems lost.

Frank Tuttle's latest Paramount production starts with a colorful Cuban wedding. Handsome young Dan Kirby and his beautiful sweetheart, Maria, are being united in the well known bonds of matrimony. Dan has triumphed over Julio Lachados. The happy couple arrive in New York and catastrophes start falling in their path.

An accident causes Dan to drop out of Maria's life and in the interval she almost loses her mind. Finally, she gets a clue as to his whereabouts and sets out—only to become involved with a gang of thieves who promptly hie her away to an empty shack. Dan leaves his hospital room loses consciousness and wakes up in a shady boarding house.

Oh and that just starts to tell of the thrills in store. As an example of entertaining, melodrama, Author Owen Davis has created a winner in "Blind Alleys." Greta Nisson is the bride and Evelyn Brent the mysterious "other woman."

PICKAWAY CLUB ENJOYED GOOD PICNIC LUNCH

Interesting Time Was Had in Scoring Work Done and Making Their Plans.

The Pickaway Township 4-H Clothing club held its seventh meeting at the school house, July 8. A most interesting time was had in scoring the finished garments, also a better understanding of the work that the judges have to do at the coming contest in October, and we trust a true club spirit on our part.

There was much planning and thought for various activities and we are glad to have the sewing out of way in order to have time for these. Mary E. Rader gave an interesting demonstration on altering patterns.

A penny drill increased the amount in our treasury 12 cents.

Devotionals in charge of the leader. After a hard morning's work the picnic lunch with all of its fun, brings renewed energy for the afternoon tasks. The recreation committee is very active. The comments of the critics were favorable.

Will Raise $850,000

An expedition that kindles the imagination is one that will put to sea from San Diego this summer in an effort to raise a ship sunk off the California coast in 1865, when the Brother Jonathan, laden with a government pay roll of $850,000 for Civil war soldiers, foundered. . . . The vessel has been definitely located, and it is thought that by means of recent improvements in methods of deep-sea diving the wreck can be reached and her strong boxes opened. It is said that war records which were aboard the craft would be of great benefit to the pension department should they prove to be decipherable.—New York Evening Post.

MOTOR CAMPING MADE PLEASURE

New York Grounds Are Well Policed and Rules
Rigidly Enforced.

Motor camping would be an unmitigated pleasure were all the camp sites as clean and free from rubbish as those in the New York state forest preserves, according to Earle B. Knox, writing in the Field and Stream Magazine.

The chief reason for the superiority of the New York camp grounds over those in many other parts of the country, Mr. Knox believes, lies in the fact that they are well policed and that rules are rigidly enforced.

Rules Are Outlined.

Some of these rules which enable the state to render the public the greatest possible service with these camps, lean-tos and open fireplaces, and at the same time keep them in harmony with their wild surroundings, are as follows:

1. No fires except for cooking, warmth or smudge purposes are permitted. No fire shall be lighted until all inflammable material is removed to prevent its spread.
2. Lighted matches, cigars, cigarettes or burning tobacco must not be deposited or left where they may cause fires.
3. No official sign posted, or statement maintained under permit, shall be defaced.
4. Peeling of bark or injuring trees is prohibited.
5. Dead or down wood may be used for fuel by temporary campers.
6. Sanitation Maintained. Camps and adjacent grounds must be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition. Garbage and refuse must either be buried, removed, or burned. Waste materials must not be thrown into the waters, or waters polluted.
7. No tents (except canvas without platform) or wooden structures shall be erected or maintained in the forest preserve, except under written permission from the conservation commission. Tar paper shall not be used, except for roofs of open camps erected under a permit.
8. No one may claim particular site from year to year or the exclusive use of the same.
9. The use of the forest preserves or the improvements thereon for private revenues or commercial purposes is prohibited.
10. Any occupied tent or structure may be removed by the commission.
11. All campers will be held responsible for compliance with these rules, and any person responsible for injury of state property will be held liable for damages and penalty.

Perfect Drivers Great Menace in Large Cities

The mediocre automobile driver must save the traffic situation in our large cities today, says a traffic expert.

The inferior and the perfect drivers are causing all the difficulties and are responsible for accidents and traffic tieups.

It is not difficult to understand how the inferior driver causes accidents to his own and other machines, but the "perfect" driver appears too perfect to be blamed.

The "perfect" driver never gets into an accident himself. He never violates a traffic rule. He never gives vociferous traffic cops a chance to enjoy themselves at his expense.

The "perfect" driver careens down the street just to and not exceeding the maximum traffic speed limit. Pedestrians see him a block away, and even if they have the right of way they hesitate to cross the street as the "perfect" driver speeds toward the crossing.

However, he makes a "perfect" stop just to and not beyond the danger line, breaking no traffic laws but frightening pedestrians so that they fear to cross the street while they have a chance.

The "perfect" driver is always right. He is so absolutely and recklessly right that other drivers and pedestrians fear him. He is the most disrupting element in the traffic situation.

Auto Lock Is Invented for Forgetful Drivers

Locks to safeguard automobile drivers against their own carelessness are being tested in the underwriters' laboratories at Chicago.

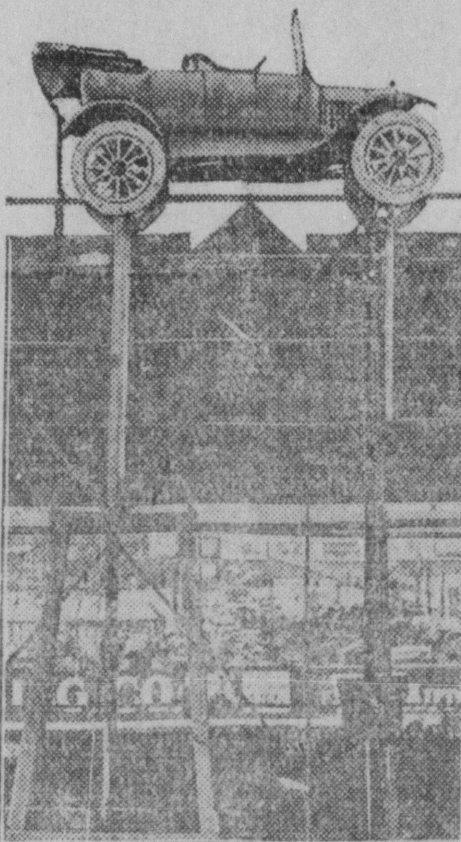

The forgetfulness of drivers of insured cars who park their cars unlocked and walk away with the feeling that the insurance company "can do the worrying" has induced the National Automobile Underwriters' conference to withdraw recognition of locking devices in the writing of insurance. To meet the situation a new lock is being developed.

The new lock is so designed that when the driver switches off the ignition to stop the engine he automatically locks the car. Few drivers, insurance companies find, are in the habit of forgetting that an engine needs gasoline to keep running. The breaking of the ignition circuit is almost a subconscious operation with the average driver.

The laboratories have recognized a number of locks so made that the mechanism which breaks the circuit also locks the car, but this lock is the first that performs both operations at the same time.

American Diplomat Will Not Junk Old Machines

Larz Anderson, American diplomat of Brookline, Mass., believes that automobiles have personalities just like horses and refuses to junk any car he ever owned. Buying cars since the year one of automobile history, Anderson has probably the greatest assortment of types, special bodies, motors and what-not to be found in the world on his estate, "Weld." Around the whitewashed walls of the garage hang the portraits of this notable motor family. Each has its photograph taken in the days of its prime.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

The muffler should be cleaned out at least once a year.

The majority of automobile accidents occur at intersections.

Humans don't really need intuition except when meeting a one-eyed car at night.

Springs should be tested to see that the tension is correct after the valves are ground.

You get fewer miles to the gallon in an expensive car, but they are horizontal miles.

NO BOTTOM FOUND TO MARBLE CAVE

In the Sangre de Cristo range in Colorado is Marble cave, an unexplored and bottomless pit.

Scientists are of the belief that it is the opening to a volcano that was active many millions of years ago.

In the same range is the Medano river, known as the "disappearing river," for it is a stream in one part of the forest and then it disappears to reappear many miles away.

The Sangre de Cristos are remarkable for many other freaks. Twenty miles south of Westcliff is a vast red sandstone bed where fossils are found of early sea life, indicative of that far period when this great inland range of mountains was the bottom of the sea. This bed has been of especial interest to geologists and scientists, and students interested in the formation of the world.

The range is the longest, straightest and highest in the United States and the most spectacularly colored, with 100 peaks from whose summit the snow never leaves.

Crow's Peculiarities

So far as scientists have been able to ascertain there is only one counterfeiter in the animal kingdom. This is the English cuckoo. It was so classified because it lays eggs, cleverly disguised, in other birds' nests. Although crows are thieves at heart they hold court in which they try their own criminals. At the close of the court two or more crows fall upon the culprit and punish him.—Exchange.

Watch Your Woolens!

With the summer season, the moth miller is abroad hunting a good place to lay her eggs. She prefers woolens as a good place to deposit her eggs, for there will be good feeding for her young.

Keep the cover on your upholstered furniture, brushed at least once each week, remove all cushions, and use your electric cleaner now and then. DO NOT COVER YOUR FURNITURE WITH COVERS. The young moth will crawl thru the covering and destroy your coverings before you are aware of their presence.

Place your woollen clothing and blankets in a moth-proof chest and cease to worry. We have just received a large shipment of "Treasure Chests" lined inside with red cedar, with walnut on the outside. They are beautifully finished and will add greatly to the beauty of the room, as well as serve as a protection to your clothing.

Finally Come Through With a Win at West Jefferson.

After a long hitting famine the Eagle team got busy with their war clubs Sunday at West Jefferson and bunched enough blows off of Longshore in the first and fifth innings to win a 7 to 6 decision.

The battle was interesting and exciting with some nice ball shown in spots and some more that was not so nice.

Doggy Taylor did the flinging for the Birds and kept the West Jefferson blows well separated but was very wild, granting nine free trips to first and materially assisting the home team in piling up their half dozen markers.

Hits by H. Miller, Terry, Targee and Briggs gave the Circleville team a pair of runs in the first and in the fifth the team batted around, gathering in five more counters.

In this frame McLaughlin, Terry, Targee, O. Miller and Taylor all hit safely and H. Miller and Thompson were given free passes.

For the home team Catcher Berger was the big noise at bat, getting three doubles, a single and a walk in five trips to the plate.

Cure Alfalfa in Windrow or Cock Feeding Value Increased Because More of Leaves Are Retained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is a popular belief that alfalfa and other hays cure more rapidly when handled so as to keep the leaves in a fresh condition until the stems have lost much of their moisture. This belief rests on the assumption that so long as the leaves are not dry they continue to draw or pump the moisture from the stems. It is partly because of this theory that curing in the windrow has been so commonly advocated, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Retains More Leaves.

It is generally recognized that hay cured in the windrow or cock does retain more of its leaves, thereby increasing its feeding value. So far as can be ascertained, however, no experiments have hitherto been conducted to determine whether or not the leaves actually aid in removing water from the stems. With this in mind some tests were begun in 1924 and continued in 1925 by department investigators, the results of which are discussed in Department Bulletin No. 1424-D.

Samples of alfalfa were taken and weighed immediately. Some of them were left to cure in the natural condition—that is, with the leaves on—while the leaves were picked from others by hand. Weighings were made at intervals to determine the rapidity with which the various samples lost their moisture.

In every case where the leaves were removed from the stems the alfalfa dried out somewhat more rapidly than where it was allowed to cure in its natural state; that is, with the leaves on. The difference was not great and just how much of this is due to handling cannot be easily determined. However, it is perfectly clear from the data that alfalfa in the quantities used in the tests cures at least as rapidly with leaves removed as with them attached, which is contrary to the popular belief.

Fallacy of Popular Theory.

These extensive tests would seem to indicate the fallacy of the popular theory concerning the pumping action of the leaves, but this need not necessarily change the practice of curing hay in the windrow or cock. Some other explanation must be made for the beneficial results of the practice, however.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Control Cabbage Worms With Arsenate Mixture

Cabbage worms and cabbage aphids usually make their appearance about this season of the year in more or less destructive numbers. Farmers, truck crop growers and backyard gardeners will find a cheap and effective remedy for controlling the pests in the use of lead arsenate and nicotine.

The most effective mixture is one containing 15 parts of powdered lead arsenate to 100 parts of hydrated lime. This is dusted on the plants and does not in any way impair the use of the cabbage for human food, it is said.

Repeated doses of the poison dust are necessary during the season, particularly when the heads are forming, if effective control is to be secured.

Where cabbage aphids are present in any appreciable numbers, it is suggested that 1 per cent nicotine be added to the poison dust. This will rid the plants of the lice at the same time that protection is provided against the ravages of the cabbage worms.

Sweet Corn Is Ambition of Every Home Gardener

Sweet corn is the ambition of every home gardener. Only home-grown corn is really sweet. Corn from the market, while excellent as food, has lost the sugar content before it can come to the table. Fresh picked corn alone retains the sugary quality which makes it the most popular summer vegetable.

Removed from the stalk, a chemical change starts which turns the sugar into starch and the corn has a corn taste but not a sweet one if it remains four hours before going into the kettle, for scientists tell us that this changing of sugar into starch is accomplished in about that time. That is why a suspieler, so often arises that sweet corn sold in the market is field corn or, as it is often called, "horse corn." It was sweet corn once. Time has stolen the sweetness.

Silage Made From Shock Corn With Plenty of Water

Good silage can be made from shock corn provided enough water is run in the silo while the filling is done to wet the silage enough so that it will properly pack to exclude the air.

The best way to put the water into the silo is to pump it directly into the distributing pipe while the filler is running. Where this cannot be done the water must be hauled in a tank and then run directly into the fan of the filler. After the filling is completed more water should be pumped onto the silage provided it can be done.

THOUSANDS OF ALIENS SMUGGLED INTO THE U. S.
Probers at Ellis Island Say Many Foreigners Enter Country Along Coast.

New York.—Aliens are being smuggled into the United States faster than federal authorities can apprehend and deport them, Representative Milton W. Shreve of Erie, Pa., member of a special committee investigating conditions at Ellis Island declared.

Other members of the committee, including Representatives William B. Oliver, Alabama and Anthony J. Griffin, New York; Robert C. White, assistant secretary of labor, and Melvin Jones, assistant to the director of the budget, agreed with Shreve that thousands of aliens were smuggling themselves into the country along the seaboard and land boundary lines. The Florida coast, they said, presented the most difficult problem on account of its proximity to Cuba.

Thirty thousand seamen entered the United States by deserting their ships in American ports during the last 12 months, members of the committee said.

LOANS UP TO $500

Consider the silver dollar. It is cold hard cash. It is not made of rubber because it was never intended to be stretched. Neither can it be bounced around to ten or fifteen different places at one time. Such a thing is a "metallic impossibility."

But when you have a considerable number of them coming into your hands every week or month, you are in a position to command a certain credit. With The City Loan this means that you can borrow plenty of dollars to pass around to everyone you owe.

Thousands of folks have learned that while a silver dollar is painfully firm, a good City Loan credit is pleasingly elastic.

Liberal allowance for your old cleaner

You won't have to postpone owning a Greater Hoover until your old, inefficient cleaner is completely useless. You can know the joy of Hoover cleaning immediately. You can have the aid of the Hoover all through these summer months, when the daily burden of blown-in dust is so great and Hoover helpfulness means so much.

Just call us on the phone. We'll make an appraisal of your old machine—without the slightest charge or obligation—and give you a generous allowance for it on the purchase of your new Hoover.

Just think what a difference having the Hoover is going to make in your enjoyment of the summer! Think of the extra time you'll have for rest—the extra vitality you'll have for play—if the Hoover is relieving you of the burden of cleaning—and doing it better than it's ever been done before.

"Positive Agitation," the revolutionary cleaning principle of the Greater Hoover, sets a new standard of home cleanliness. If you don't know the untold difference which this amazing principle makes in cleaning, you owe it to yourself to have a Hoover demonstration. Only $6.25 down, balance monthly, if you wish to purchase.

It pays to know the difference between the Hoover and a vacuum cleaner

You can now get "Positive Agitation" in a new popular-priced Hoover model. Ask us about it.

INDIANS HAVE NO SINGLE RELIGION

Beliefs Among Various Tribes Differ.

Washington.—Nearly 100,000 Indians in the United States are untouched by Christian doctrines, the board of Indian commissioners recently estimated, and remain to all intents and purposes pagans, presumably still holding in large measure the beliefs of their ancestors. What these primitive Indian religious beliefs are is told in a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Poetic fancy and a natural tendency to describe newly encountered beliefs and customs in terms of those already familiar have given white people many false ideas in regard to the religious beliefs of the American Indians," says the bulletin. "Some enthusiasts have pictured the typical red man as noble and ethical beyond his white brother, believing in a fatherly 'Great Spirit' and striving to live the good life that he may go after death to the 'Happy Hunting Ground.' This is a fallacy.

Have No Single Religion.

"There is no single religion of the American Indians. Instead the beliefs differed widely in different sections and among different tribes. There was, however, a general similarity of views, and these were about what could have been expected from people of a relatively primitive degree of culture. Nowhere does what could truly be called the conception of a 'Great Spirit,' an overruling deity, emerge.

"There were greater and lesser spirits, to be sure, but the characteristic Indian belief is in a multitude of spirits animating animals, objects and the various forces of nature. Nor were these spirits inherently good or bad, morally. They might help or hinder the individual in his activities or health, and whether they did the one or the other was the test of their 'goodness' or 'badness' for him.

"The primitive Indian has no conception of a hell; nor is his entry into the spirit land dependent on his conduct. He enters it as a matter of course, he believes, and continues there whatever activities have interested him in this life. To some tribes this is a 'skyland,' to others it is merely a region of the earth, 'in the west,' 'across the sea,' or 'beyond a river.' Others believe the villages of the dead to be near their villages but invisible.

Believe in Magic.

"Coupled in the mind of the primitive Indian with a belief in many spirits is a belief in magic, through which the spirits can be influenced. The medicine men possessed the secrets of such magic, it was believed, and often interceded. All Indians believe in the possession of a soul which leaves the body at death. They also believe that it leaves at other times, and some tribes ascribe illness to this absence of the soul. The services of the medicine man are sought to recover the missing soul. Belief in a continuing soul did not lead to ancestor worship as among Eastern peoples.

"Most Indian mythologies do not concern themselves with creation; they assume the existence of the earth and deal with its peopling and with the origin of arts, customs and rites. All these are supposed to have come by a sort of revelation.

"Some tribes, however, especially those of the Pacific coast region, do have a creation myth. In some it is 'Old Man Above,' in others an animal such as the coyote or the silver fox, who makes a hole in the sky, comes to earth and creates the animals and men. In some of these myths there is only water beneath the sky, but the descending being creates the earth in the form of an island which grows.

Morality Well Developed.

"Morality and ethics were well developed among American Indians. They have a strong sense of conscience and many individuals are strikingly benevolent. The tribal morality was strict. He who lied, failed to keep his promises, or stole within the tribe was disgraced. Murder, too, was punished. War removed ethical barriers among Indians as it has among most people in all ages. It then became a virtue for the Indian to kill his enemies and to take their property.

"On the whole, the Indian's religious beliefs may be described as being wholly practical and as springing from fear of the more or less hostile forces of nature that surround him. His various rites arose from his efforts to propitiate or to take advantage of these forces."

Form "Cavalry Troop" in China; Use Ponies

Washington.—Lacking a cavalry troop and feeling that one might be useful, officers of the Fifteenth United States infantry, guarding part of the Tientsin-Peking railway in China, have improvised a mounted outfit with their foot soldiers.

One officer and thirty-four men of the headquarters company were told off for this duty. Their mounts are Mongolian ponies, which range from 13 to 14 hands in height and average about 700 pounds in weight.

The Fifteenth infantry headquarters company platoon has been trained by Capt. H. M. Henderson in horsemanship, cavalry drill, patrolling, and street fighting, with frequent practice marches of 18 to 40 miles.

KU KLUX KLAN DRAGON OF INDIANA BREAKS SILENCE

Governor Gets Benefit of Check To Defray Expenses of Campaign—Executive Preaches Sermon on "What Doth It Profit?"—Says He Has Nothing To Say When Interviewed By the Press—"Little Black Box" Is In Limelight.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 11—UP—A check for $2,500 payable to Ed. Jackson, governor of Indiana, and an attached note stating the amount was part of a $10,000 contribution to the governor's primary expenses has been found in the "little black box" of D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan chieftain, the Indianapolis Times said in a copyrighted story today.

The check is styled the first concrete evidence in the political investigation in the state. No contribution of $10,000 was listed on the campaign expense sheet filed by Governor Jackson.

The Times said the check was signed by Stephenson and the note said: "This check is the first one-fourth of $10,000 given Jackson personally for primary purposes," and was in the handwriting of Stephenson.

At that time he was the grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan. Two years later, in 1925, he was deposed from leadership, and sentenced to life imprisonment on the charge of murdering Miss Madge Oberholzer.

In September, 1926, he smuggled a letter out of the prison, accusing men he believed his friends of causing his downfall. It also charged that the Klan had made Indiana a feudal state and asserted that high state and municipal officers were its vassals.

The Times says: "There is every reason to believe that this check was written in the Noblesville jail by Stephenson between the time he was convicted and the day he was removed to Michigan City."

Prosecuting Attorney Remy and three others—special prosecutors, are in charge of the official Marion county investigation into "Stephensonism" and interviewed the ex-Klan head at the state prison recently, and Remy has filed affidavits against four Indianapolis officials, charging them with corruption. They are Mayor John L. Duvall, City Controller William C. Buser, City Purchaser John Collins and Earl Garrett, former market master.

These charges were incidental to Remy's inquiry into alleged influence exerted by the Klan in the 1925 city election.

A dispatch from Osawatimie, Kansas today, quoted Governor Jackson as saying, "I have no comment to make."

The governor and his family are in Kansas vacationing with relatives.

JOHN COMPTON DEAD.

John Compton died at the County Home July 12. He was born at Waterloo, Fayette county, October 4, 1851, and was a son of James and Susan Brooks Compton. One brother Milton Compton, is living.

The funeral services will be held at the Christian church, Williamsport Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Springlawn cemetery.

The governor made his statement after he had been confronted with a photostatic copy of the $2,500 check reproduced by the Indianapolis Times. Governor Jackson had just preached a Sunday sermon at the Osawatimie church on "What Doth It Profit?"

Later he said: "Why I thought all these documents had been published long ago. From the very beginning I have adhered to a policy of saying nothing regarding these matters and I shall continue to do so."

Speculation turned today to the possible effect of the statute of limitations which outlaws ordinary prosecutions not commenced within two years of the occurrence of the alleged criminal act.

Attorneys said that the statute makes exceptions in cases wherein it can be proved that there was a conspiracy to suppress the evidence necessary to convict.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Hamilton — Reports that H. R. Beveridge will be named state prohibition inspector with Butler county as his particular territory, were heard here today. Beveridge was active in liquor raids under appointment of the Monroe, Ohio, mayor, until village courts were declared illegal.

Cincinnati — Two women were dead and one was in a Hamilton hospital today with a fractured ankle as the result of an accident one mile north of New Burlington, Ohio, late yesterday in which a truck loaded with hogs crashed headon into a northbound Cincinnati Dayton traction car. The dead are: Adam Stahlhaber, 60, driver of the truck and Pearl Jasbrink, 30, both of Hamilton. Benjamin Beckett, 35, Franklin, Ohio motorman of the car, suffered a fractured ankle.

Gallipolis — Water supply in Gallipolis is running low today owing to exceedingly low stage of water in the Ohio river. City Manager Hall issued an order prohibiting sprinkling of streets and lawns. Water in reserve for fire fighting is very low in the city.

New Lexington — The first move to reopen mines in the Hocking and Crooksville fields was in evidence today when superintendents of several shafts were checking up on supplies and inspecting entries at McLuney, Corning, Hemlock and San Toy.

Cleveland — Burrowing into secret recesses of Cleveland's underworld, Joseph Russell, "Smoked Glass" robber, was safely hidden early Tuesday from clutches of the law. Russell's gang in the haymarket district was believed by police to have sheltered the young "streak" in the home of a friend. A rival gang, detectives believed, was equally as anxious to snare the elusive robber.

Portsmouth — Mrs. Albert Estep, 43 and her two daughters, Trolley, 13, and Paulina, 8, drowned late yesterday at Salt Lick creek.

The creek where the bodies were found was six feet deep. There were no witnesses to the accident but it is believed the youngest child probably fell into the water and the other two attempted to rescue her.

A. P. SANDLES HAS HIS SAY ON LIBRARY

Says Governor Was Right When He Was State Auditor But is Wrong Now.

Governor Donahey closed the state library in the statehouse July 1, 1927. Governor Worthington, a Democrat established it in 1817. During the 110 years, 43 governors have been its friends.

Governor Donahey closed one of our most useful institutions. Now he wants to scatter the quarter million books, countless magazines, newspaper files, and other reference works over the state. Farm and city protest such action.

We have before us, Vic Donahey's 1919 annual report as state auditor. On page 94, under caption, "Ohio State Library," Vic said:

"The effort by some to have the state library moved to Ohio State university should not receive favorable consideration."

"The state library is a valuable collection of rare and interesting reference works. It is maintained for the benefit of every Ohio citizen. It should remain in the state house, where it is accessible to every person who visits Columbus."

This was Vic Donahey's judgment in 1919. He was right then. He is wrong now. As state auditor, he was the best Ohio ever had. As governor the joke is on Ohio. He should agree with his 43 predecessors and be a friend of the library.

A. P. Sandles.

ENTERTAIN ROTARY CLUB.

Robert Ernest Deringer, a Columbus tenor, entertained the Rotary club at their weekly meeting on last Thursday.

Mr. Deringer is one of Columbus' most promising young tenors possessing a power and pleasing voice, and his selections were received with acclamation. Mr. Deringer has been heard many times thru station WEAO at Columbus and the Rotary club feels fortunate in having this noted singer entertain them. He was ably assisted by Miss Ruth Louise Trout, at the piano.

IN HOSPITAL.

Mrs. B. K. Ludford and daughter, Marlene, visited J. D. Acord, at Mercy hospital, Columbus. He is getting along nicely and will be able to come home soon.

AUTO ACCIDENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Baown, of Chillicothe, returning home from Columbus driving a six cylinder Whippet hit a telephone pole Monday evening when the driver tried to avoid running into another car near the corner of Court and Mill streets.

The occupants of the car escaped injury. The wrecked machine was brought in by the Circleville Motors company. The pole had to be replaced by the Citizens Telephone company, as it was broken off at the butt.

GOODBY KETTLE HOLES.

Sturm and Dillard, railroad contractors have begun operations on the west side of the Island road and are now taking the gravel from both sides on the old Lindsay farm. The curve in the road at this point near the Red bridge will be eliminated and the road moved south. This the firm has agreed to do and the county commissioners gave them the permission to cross the Island road at grade. The firm expects to put a washing machinery outfit and wash the gravel taken from the river's edge. This gravel will be used for ballasting. The company has moved a mountain of dirt to make fills in the low places on the Crites, Smith and other farms south of the Lindsay farm.

FIRE DESTROYS REICHELDERFER BARN MONDAY

Erected Seven Years Ago by Executors of Nelson Hitler --Estate Cost $2,700.

The big barn on the farm of Cliff Reichelderfer in Washington township was destroyed by fire Monday evening. The barn was 40 by 36 and was covered with an asphalt shingle roof.

It was discovered to be on fire by Mrs. Reichelderfer, who saw the blaze from her kitchen window. The wind was in the opposite direction, and that saved the home.

The building was on the old Nelson Hitler home farm, which was purchased by Mr. Reichelderfer several years ago. It was built by George Steely and Thomas L. Hitler, executors of the Nelson Hitler estate, some seven years ago and was built to take place of one that was previously destroyed by fire. The one burned Monday night was constructed by C. M. Spaythe, formerly of this city, now of Springfield. It was a staunch building and it cost $2700 to construct.

This is the third barn to burn down on this farm. Mr. Reichelderfer is of the opinion that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion from overheated green hay. From four to five tons had recently been placed in the loft. Besides the hay, one hundred bushels of corn, a Fordson tractor, one set of harness and a plow were consumed. The only machinery saved, was a wagon and a binder.

The barn was insured for $2000 and the contents for $1,200 and the risk was carried by the Pickaway Mutual company, of Ashville.

A gentleman, who was attracted to the scene of the blaze, remarked that this was the third barn he saw burning between here and Columbus Monday night, and he thought all had the same origin, overheated green hay.

CLAIMS LARGEST CHURCH CHOIR

Detroit Church Believes No Other Lutheran Choir Exceeds It In Size.

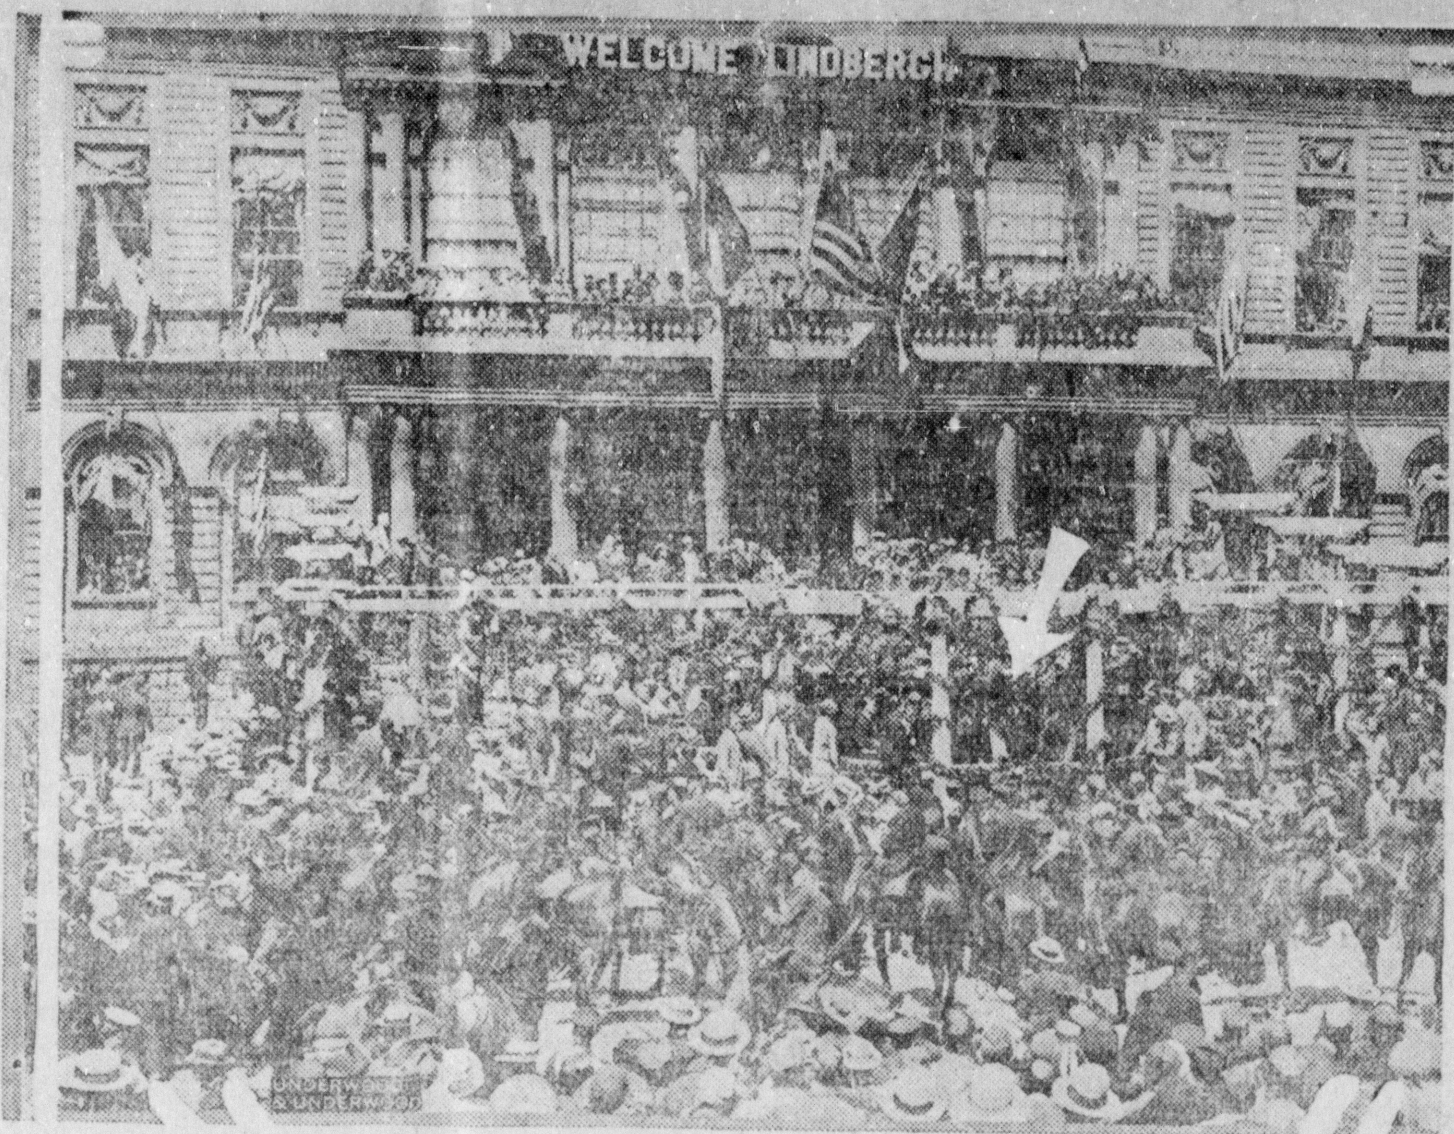

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—Faith Lutheran Church of this city, Rev. Roy D. Linhart, pastor, makes the claim that it has the largest choir of any Lutheran church in the United States or Canada.

Since moving into its new $165,000 building, the church has developed a regular singing organization composed of eighty voices under the direction of Pastor Linhart, who was trained as a pipe-organist before he entered the ministry. The choir is accompanied by a large three-manual organ, which is located in three separate chambers. The seating capacity of the new church, which is connected with the Joint Synod of Ohio, is approximately twelve hundred.

Geologist's Idea Made

Fortunes for Others

The first to introduce the use of coal oil, or "kerosene," in the United States and Canada was Dr. Abraham Gesner, a distinguished Canadian geologist.

Doctor Gesner, after long experimentation, discovered how to produce oil that could be used in lamps for illuminating purposes, from bituminous shale and canal coal. Though he gave the name "kerosene" to his discovery it was popularly called coal oil.

Following the discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania in 1859, and later in many other sections of North America, kerosene became the principal product of the distillation of the crude oil. Like most inventors, Doctor Gesner reaped little financial benefit from his discovery, which was destined to be the foundation of scores of immense fortunes.

A Little Learning

Five hundred farmers will sail in July for a 9,500-mile tour of the Old world. They are going not to visit cathedrals, art galleries, castles, mountain resorts and watering places, but to study the agricultural methods which have enabled European farmers to surpass our own. For instance, the superior European farmer sticks close at home patiently applying certain well-known principles taught by experience and government experts, and practically never tours America. He can't afford to tour America. And as he looks over his visitors he surely will conclude that American failure is a wonderful thing.

Bigger Babies

In a letter to the Journal of the American Medical association, a New York clothing manufacturer asserts that his company has been forced to increase the size of the dresses for one, two and three-year-old children. Persistent complaints that the necks of the dresses were too small have come to him during the past year for the first time in thirty years' experience. Most of the complaints came from California. This seems to show that the size of American babies is increasing. Californians may now point to another benefit of their glorious climate.

Cat Adopts Skunks

A mother cat with four kittens came to the farm of F. A. Jones at Brookfield, Mo., but Jones, having other ideas on the subject consigned the four kittens to the creek. The next day his small son informed him that the kittens were safe and sound. Recalling the traditional nine lives, Jones investigated and found that the cat had acquired four other kittens without doubt, but instead of their being some other feline offspring they were of the genus mephitis, or common American skunk.—Indianapolis News.

Discourage Dandelions

An ice pick will prove very useful in the war on dandelions, says Nature Magazine. By puncturing the center of each plant and pouring a few drops of gasoline into the heart of it, you will find that your effort will discourage further growth.

Electricity Runs Plows

Plowing by electric power is being tried out in Italy. The plow is anchored on opposite sides of the field. The cost of equipment and operation is high, and the method is successful only in large and level fields that are free from stumps and other obstacles. Inventors are working on devices in which storage batteries may be used.

Pulling the Great Colorado Off the Mud

As the United States fleet of 122 warships was entering the Hudson at New York the battleship Colorado ran aground off the Battery. It took a high tide and the help of a flotilla of tugs to get the huge vessel afloat again.

DEAD COMRADES

Honored In Plans of American Legion—French Cemeteries On Tour.

New York.—The "Second A. E. F." will be a "sacred pilgrimage and not a lark," James F. Barton, National Adjutant of the American Legion, declared, announcing that every one of the 18,000 planning to attend the Legion convention in Paris has registered for a trip to a battlefield and a cemetery.

The convention will be held from September 19 to 23. The advance guard is to sail August 10.

Contingents will follow until September 10, when the Leviathan, the flagship of a fleet of 24 Legion liners, will leave with General John J. Pershing and Howard P. Savage, Chicago, National Commander.

Mothers, wives and other relatives will accompany the veterans in large numbers. Mr. Barton sailed Saturday night to prepare for care of the delegates.

Old English Institution

Waits in the Middle ages in England were a body of musicians kept by some great persons to announce the hours of the night. Many cities and towns also had their regular waits. Pale Pink Chiffon Is Trimmed With Deep Rose

Displaying a smart frock of pale pink chiffon trimmed with deep rose of the same material. The voluminous sleeves are trimmed with the darker color in a futuristic design and the row of buttons that extend down the back adds a chic touch.

Separate Jacket Made of Choice of Material

There is only one special item in a woman's wardrobe this year which seems to run the gamut of materials. This is the separate jacket, either as a part of an ensemble or an added little wrap which harmonizes with the frock underneath. These little jackets, with or without sleeves, are a very important article in the smart spring wardrobe. And they run from the knitted sweater coat to the most filmy little coat worn over the sleeveless frock either to assist in changing the character of the frock slightly or as a charming affectation.

If the jackets are made of knitted fabric they have the cardigan closing opening quite far down, and fastened with a few buttons and having patch pockets or no pockets. If they are made of satin to wear over a printed or flecked satin frock, they content themselves with slit pockets, but also are sleeveless and show the frock underneath. Some of them are in the form of sleeveless waistcoats.

Ostrich Feathers Being Decorated With Diamonds

Ostrich feathers that are being used in Paris to such an extent, but seldom au naturel, are embroidered with "diamonds" this year. Thick white and gray feather boas of ostrich are very short but extremely bulky, only just meeting around the neck, where they are tied by bunched ribbons, the bunch of ribbon ornamented with "diamonds," a cabochon made of brilliant making a center. Tiny brilliants are sewn to the "stems" of the feathers. Just at the ends, but not regularly, the effect intended and produced being that of frosting. In some cases, or of stray dewdrops in others. For the stage, the trimming of ostrich feathers used for gowns is also frosted with "diamonds," while fans made of ostrich feathers, whether white or gray, are also so decorated. Sometimes the sticks of the fans are encrusted with diamonds.

Cravat Silks Used for One, Two-Piece Frocks

Cravat silks they are called—these new silks with the small conventional patterns which are used by the best houses for smart little one and two-piece frocks. They are so different and so utterly charming that one is quite safe in predicting for them a marked vogue. Both dark and light backgrounds are featured, with the designs in multicolor or in a single contrasting tone. Frequently by the use of two or three tones of a color the compose effect is achieved.

In silks of this particular type one can readily see that the simpler the frocks the smarter they are. Occasionally a plain material is combined, but as a rule the chic depends entirely upon the clever and different use of the fabric itself.

Sports Costume May Be Worn for Any Occasion

Years ago, when automobiles were new, women used to dress for motoring. They crowded on all the dust-coats, gloves, veils, scarfs and goggles possible. A few years later they did the same kind of thing for golf. Today the sports costume is any costume which is comfortable and appropriate for the sport chosen. In most instances the same costume, with a possible change of footwear, is equally appropriate for the majority of day-time occasions outside the sport field.

Stripes Crossways

Spring sweaters are one of the important manifestations of the mode. They form a large percentage of the blouses on two-piece sport dresses in Paris.

GENERAL PERSHING

Reviews Citizens' Military Training Camp Cadet Corps.

Monday, July 4th, was a red letter day for the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison. It was an ideal day for the exercises which marked the eternal gratitude of all American citizens for the courage and steadfastness of our forefathers who made this glorious country possible.

Early in the morning the C. M. T. C. Regiment was formed and entrained for Indianapolis, where they paraded with and were reviewed by General John J. Pershing, the Commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War. The parade was one of the most impressive ever witnessed in Indianapolis and practically every spectator commented upon the soldierly bearing and the splendid marching of the C. M. T. C. Regiment. General Pershing, himself, said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen. He was amazed that so much progress could be made in so short a time and, as a personal tribute to the young men, who were voluntarily giving this service to their country, the General saluted each platoon of the regiment as they passed the reviewing stand.

Immediately after the parade the regiment boarded the cars which returned them to the camp where a good meal was waiting them. The candidates, whose parents had already arrived, were permitted to invite them to dinner with the company and most of them were surprised at all the good things they had to eat.

In the afternoon a number of noted and prominent men were present for the review and exercises which were held at three o'clock. Stirring and inspiring addresses were delivered by Mr. Paul V. McNutt, Commander, Dept. of Indiana The American Legion; Honorable Arthur R. Robinson, U. S. Senator and Honorable Ed. Jackson, Governor of Indiana.

At the conclusion of the exercises the C. M. T. C. Band, composed of one hundred and four cadets, played several selections, the last of which was the Star Spangled Banner.

BASE BALL

Circleville Gordon Tires defeated Fox Post Office Sunday at their grounds by a score of 11 to 3.

The Tires won the game on the 9th by scoring 8 runs on 6 hits and 2 bases on balls. Lane allowed 5 hits and helped win his own game by poling out a homer with two men on in the ninth. Davis with his hitting and Fox with his sensational fielding also starred for the Tires. Herrin starred for Fox Post Office.

The Tires will journey to Lockbourne next Sunday to play the fast team of that place.

An albino rat with pink eyes and white skin and hair has been found in London, and its origin is a mystery. One theory is that the rodent may have bred from tame specimens that had escaped. PHEASANTS TO BE SHIPPED TO PICKAWAY

From One to Two Hundred Will be Distributed Thru the Proper Committee.

Sportsmen in Circleville and Pickaway county can find occasion for gratification in an announcement which has been made by D. O. Thompson, chief of the fish and game division of the state agricultural department.

Mr. Thompson says the number of pheasants in the county will soon be increased by a supply of from 100 to 200, which will be shipped there. These will come to Circleville and be distributed from this city thruout the county in the most advantageous way. The distribution will be under the direction of a committee, probably composed of local sportsmen, including members of sportsmen's clubs. At the head is to be Frank Hard, of Washington, C. H., game protector for the district of which Pickaway county is a part. The pheasants will be used for propagation.

Mr. Thompson, in speaking of the matter said: "We are making a survey of the state, and Pickaway county is among those to which shipments will be made. This has been in mind for some time, and the supply will be sent as soon as possible. It is to be as large as the supply will permit. I realize that pheasants are needed in the county and will do what I can to meet the desire of the hunters and sportsmen."

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—James W. Brundige, son of Thomas and Rachel Brundige was born October 14, 1859, and died in St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus, Thursday, June 30, following a year's illness.

He leaves five sisters and five brothers; George Brundige, deputy county treasurer of Franklin county; Miss Laura D. Brundige, of the W. M. Ritter Co.; Miss Katherine Brundige, at the home at 111 Dakota avenue; Charles E. 60 Wisconsin avenue; Fred H. Lake Worth, Florida; Miss Ida J. McCorkle, Adrian, Michigan; William, of Whisler, and Arthur and Mrs. Minnie McCorkle, of Kingston. He also leaves three grandchildren.

He had been a resident in Columbus for thirteen years, coming from Adair, Illinois, to make his home with his sisters. He had been a patient at the St. Anthony's hospital for a year and a half and his death resulted from a complication of diseases following an illness due to rheumatism.

The last sad rites were performed July 2, at the home of his sister, Mrs. David McCorkle, in Kingston, Rev. W. S. Fisher officiating.

He was buried in the cemetery at Whisler. The pall was carried by his brothers and nephews; Arthur, George and Charles, the brothers; Lemuel E. Brundige and Howard Hinton and brother-in-law, David McCorkle.

Friends who attended the funeral services from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Hessemmer and Clarence Lutz of the W. M. Ritter Lumber Co., and Miss Ada Fisher and Mrs. Lottie Darling, all of Columbus, Ohio.

Control Disease of Cucumbers

Eliminate Agencies by Which Destructive Ailment Is Wintered.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The most effective means of controlling the mosaic disease of cucumbers, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, consists in the elimination of the agencies by which this destructive disease is carried over the winter.

The cause of the disease is unknown, but diseased plants contain a form of infection which may be transmitted to healthy plants by such insects as the melon aphid and the striped cucumber beetle. The disease does not live in the soil and is not carried in the seed of the cultivated cucurbits, but is known to live from year to year in certain wild plants, some of which occur in most of the cucumber-growing sections.

Wild Plants Carry Disease.

The known wild plants which carry the disease are the wild cucumber, milkweed, pokeweed, two species of wild ground cherry, and catnip. The disease is carried over winter in the roots of these plants, except in the case of the wild cucumber which carries the infection in the seed. Insects feeding on these infected wild plants and on the cucumbers in the field spread the mosaic disease. In a number of fields where the average mosaic infection had been approximately 40 per cent, eradication of the wild host plants in and near the fields reduced it to 3 per cent.

Before planting, the field itself and all land within 75 yards should be carefully inspected and all wild host plants, whether healthy or diseased, should be pulled out. If the cucumber field can be surrounded by other cultivated crops, the work of eradication will be simplified and insects are likely to be less prevalent.

Plants Are Dwarfed.

Mosaic cucumber plants are dwarfed, the younger leaves are mottled with green and yellow, and the fruits are mottled and misshapen; the darker areas forming warty projections on the surface. When such plants appear early in the season they should be removed immediately to prevent further spread of the infection by insects. It is also advisable to use insecticides to reduce the number of insects. Where several fields are adjacent to one another it is essential that all growers co-operate in removing the wild host plants about their fields.

Dusting for Insects IsPopular and Effective

Dusting insects has become so popular, and the dust guns so easy to use and effective, that dust is taking the place of liquid sprays. For ordinary garden use a coarse cloth sack tied to the end of a stout stick is a very effective duster for leaf eaters, but for some of the sucking insects that require a contact poison like nicotine a blower is best, for it will force the dust up under the leaves as well. You can get almost any kind of insecticide now in the powder form. The best time to use is very early in the morning before the dew dries off, or it will be needful to sprinkle or spray the foliage with water to make the dust stick. There are combination dusts that will serve for both eating and sucking pests, and most gardeners will be wise to use them and use them freely.

Danger Spots in RoadsAre Now Clearly Marked

Danger spots in the Minnesota system of yellow-and-black markings on trunk highways, have general meanings conveyed by their shapes in addition to the specific warnings they give.

Diamond-shaped signs warn of actual dangers on the road, such as a sharp turn. When the careful driver sees one ahead he always slows the speed of his car.

Square signs mark dangers near the road but not part of it, such as schools. They put good drivers on the alert the instant they are sighted.

Octagonal and round signs always require a full stop. The eight-edged signs are posted in most instances at intersections of arterial routes to avoid collisions. Round signs of the same import but in a class by themselves, are used to mark railroad crossings, all of which are always dangerous.

Fresh Straw Is Liableto Stunt Plant Growth

Fresh straw plowed under sometimes stunts the growth of the following crop, according to soil specialists of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. The straw acts as a medium for certain kinds of bacteria which multiply rapidly and which feed on the nitrogen that would ordinarily go to the crop. This explanation is borne out by the fact that when nitrogen is added with the straw, the harmful effects are prevented.

In very sandy soils, injury appears before a shortage of nitrogen can make itself felt. Apparently, the straw also introduces poisons which affect the tender seedlings.

The soil specialists of the station are now endeavoring to find methods of treating the straw so that both forms of injury will be prevented.

REPOSED MIND WILL PREVENT PERSPIRATION

Any Kind of Excitement Relaxes Pores and Causes Glands to Overwork.

Word that your best beau has eloped with your girl chum, the shock that follows driving dad's new car into a ditch, and the embarrassment of being caught using the wrong fork at a swank dinner will moisten your hands and start the perspiration rolling down your forehead quicker than a game of tennis or a 500 yard dash.

"Emotion, any kind of embarrassment, and nervous shocks in general cause sweat," declared O. D. Neal, chemist of the Odorono company of Cincinnati in discussing the scientific control of perspiration before a group of beauticians in convention at Chicago. "Any kind of excitement relaxes the pores of the skin and causes the glands engaged in excretion to overwork."

Nature's method of controlling sweat is by keeping the mind reposed. Pleasant thoughts are perspiration preventatives. Plenty of sleep, the right kind of food, fresh air and regular hygienic habits also help to keep the pores taut and the glands regulating the flow of perspiration normal and regular.

"The man or woman who perspires normally and evenly over the entire body may consider himself or herself an exceedingly lucky person. Excessive perspiration, on the other hand may be a symptom of some serious emotional state or general condition. When it occurs, a physician should be consulted. When it is of a local origin and not so pronounced applications of scientific astringents are effective."

TO ESTABLISH A NATIONAL FOUNDATION

Elks Will Start Fund to be Used in Giving Relief in Times of Disaster.

The establishment of an Elks' National Foundation to give help to whatever agencies might be chosen by the lodge was advocated by Charles H. Grakelow, grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. E. before a meeting in Cincinnati formally inaugurating the 1927 reunion.

The foundation, Grakelow said, could be started by a portion of the surplus earnings of the Elks' National magazine and then could be added from contributions and other sources.

The funds, he suggested, could be used in any section of the country and could be counted upon also as a reserve to extend necessary relief in times of disaster, such as tornadoes and floods.

"There would be no limitation to the development of the movement," he said, "the results to be obtained and the great influence it would bear on Elksdom's future."

"A nation is as successful as her people, and Elksdom must keep pace in the growth of the nation so as to play the same important part in tomorrow's problems as she has so credibly done in those of yesterday and today."

He would not have the national foundation start, however, until after the Elks national memorial headquarters in Chicago and the addition to the Elks National Home at Bedford have been completed.

Glad to See Him Get His

"I notice your clerks are in excellent humor today," said a customer to the owner of a Wichita store, relates the Eagle. "Did you give them a raise?" "Not so you can notice it," replied the store owner. "To be frank, it's because my wife has just been in and it tickles them to death to see some one boss me around."

CRACK SHOTS WERE OUT FOR RECORDS

A remarkable record was made by one company of the artillery corps at a Western post. Four shots were fired from a battery of two 10-inch guns at a target 30 feet high by 60 feet long which was moving at the rate of eight miles an hour at a distance of about five miles away. All four shots were fired in a period of 1 minute and 20 seconds, and passed through a rectangle 9 feet high by 42 feet wide, three of them striking the target and the fourth passing four yards to the left of it. The remarkable accuracy of this firing can be appreciated when it is realized that a circle with a radius of 11 yards at the target would include all the shots.

Another company fired four shots from an 8-inch battery at a 30 by 60-foot target which was moving at the rate of five miles an hour at a distance of about four miles from the battery firing. All four shots were hits, and the first shot cut the raft of the material target in two. A circle with a radius of 15 yards at the target would include all the shots. The interval between the shots was 36 seconds.

LABORATORY OF MOVABLE SOILS HERE

The movable soils laboratory in charge of J. A. Slipper and Fred Salter, Ohio State university and Ohio experiment station will arrive in Pickaway county Monday, July 18, to assist County Agent H. S. Lewis in a complete soils testing clinic.

The purpose of this office is to show thru actual testing what the various types of Pickaway county soils needs. This test will show the kind of fertilizer required; the crop system giving most economic returns what causes unsatisfactory catches of alfalfa clover etc and whether the soil needs lime. While the number of farmers and farm corporations in the past have have paid money to secure this information. This program is free to every farmer thruout the county who will prepare a sample. We hear a lot about an unprofitable agriculture.

Here is an opportunity to reduce your production costs. Prepare your soil sample, deliver to the township soils chairman and profit thru the soil testing recommendations.

Ohio State university Ohio experiment station and your Farm bureau are cooperating in this service.

Snappy Answer Left Honors With Johnson

Samuel Johnson, who received $7,875 for compiling his dictionary, had almost exhausted the patience of the booksellers by whom he was employed, and was frequently urged to complete his engagement. Andrew Millar, who had the principal charge of conducting the publication, could not forbear acknowledging the receipt of the last sheet of the manuscript in the following terms:

"Andrew Millar sends his compliments to Mr. Samuel Johnson, with the money for the last sheet of the copy of the dictionary, and thanks God he has done with him."

To which Johnson returned this brief answer.

"Samuel Johnson returns his compliments to Mr. Andrew Millar, and is very glad to find (as he does by his note) that Andrew Millar has the grace to thank God for anything."—Market for Exchange.

The Impossible

The late Albert J. Beveridge, statesman and author, hated divorce or, rather, he hated the offenders who make divorce necessary.

Once, at a dinner in Indianapolis, the guests discussed with pity the case of a very admirable woman, the mother of seven young children, who found herself obliged to divorce her husband. There were obstacles, financial and other, in the way, and Mr. Beveridge said:

"A divorce like this is too bad, too impossible. It's like unscrambling an omelet to remove one bad egg."

Suit We're Born With

To find out how many yards of skin it takes to cover a human body, Doctor Takahira, Japanese physician, had a special variety of thin strong paper which adheres closely to curved surfaces pasted over his nude form. This was dried, then removed, cut into flat pieces and measured. In this way Doctor Takahira discovered it took 16 square feet of skin to cover him, although he is only 5 feet 6 inches tall.

VACATION DUE SHOULD TAKE AN INVENTORY

Get Up Early When the Sun is Rising and When Every Dew Drop is Diamond.

Vacation time is here. Vacations are due. One should, at this time, stop and take inventory of his physical and mental makeup. One should take a rest. It's the mode; it is due to yourself, to your wife, to the kiddies, to your friends, to your associates. One ought to get away with them or from them as the case may be. One needs a vacation to limber up that old framework that has assumed a posture made famous by a certain cod liver oil emulsion advertisement, to get rid of that gouty foot made so by too much overeating and sedentary ways of living, and to put oxygen in those old leather lungs which have been too full of crab producing carbon dioxide for the past ten months.

Get out and get away; get away and get out—out in the open, whether it be north, south, east or where Greeley told the young man to go and Coolidge went. Lindbergh went up, but his example would be mere monotony for most of us for we have been up in the air most of the year.

The important thing to remember is to take a vacation somewhere, somehow. A clock is run by its spring. Be sure that yours is always wound up.

Fulkerson has told us: "Students of physiognomy say that we are the saddest faced nation in the world. We see a smiling face about as often as we see a fire engine house for rent. Notice the faces of the people you pass in the street; it is very unusual to meet a man who is smiling. We have deep horizontal furrows in our foreheads, three vertical cuts between our eyebrows and two deep curves from nose to chin, which puts out mouths in parentheses. Our expressions indicate to the casual observer that each of us has a porous plaster which is peeling. Our faces look like the rough side of a washboard."

Most of us are too busy piling dollar on dollar. Most of us look forward to the day when we can retire and enjoy our money. But each time we add up the list of bonds and mortgages and figures in the little bank book we decide to wait just a few years longer. At last we lie on a sick bed with four flat tires, a carbon knock and a couple of valve taps. The doctor tells us that the only cure is a vacation.

Get out this summer. Get up early when the sun is rising and every dew drop is a diamond. Pluck a spray of flowers and inhale their fragrance. No perfumer has ever been able to catch that subtle odor and imprison it under a glass stopper. Watch the ruby throated humming bird poised like a living jewel before the open throat of a flower. No camera has ever been made fast enough to catch these rapidly whirling wings and reproduce them in a photograph. Down the lane a thrush sings his song to his mate on the nest. No man has ever been able to catch that low, throaty warble on a rubber disc and reproduce it under a scratching needle. Some things are too beautiful to be canned and reproduced at will. They will be yours if you take that vacation.

Take it. Enjoy it. Rest during it and come back this fall girded for grind that is making dollars.

"WILD BOY" BEYOND REACH OF SCIENCE

The recent discoveries of children supposed to have lived their lives among animals, and who consequently developed animal habits, add interest to the "Peter the Wild Boy" exhibit at Berkhamstead School museum, although there is no reason to suppose Peter was a wolf-child.

Peter was found in 1725 in the woods near Hamelin, in Hanover, where he had subsisted on the bark of trees, leaves, and berries for an unknown period. When found he was apparently about twelve years old.

A year later he was brought to England, but even under skillful tuition he was incapable of receiving any instruction and never developed the faculty of speech.

He died in 1785, at Axter's End farm at North Cross, where he lived since his arrival in England, and on a brass plate in the church is a sketch of his head drawn from an engraving by Bartolozzi.—London Tit-Bits.

Error the World Makes

We put too much faith in systems and look too little to men.—Benjamin Disraeli.

Young Miss Must Be Smartly Clad

Dress for Morning, One for Afternoon and One for More Formal Wear.

Now that the modern debutante has turned naive and dons the long sweeping robe de style, her very youngest sister, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, has become the most sophisticated member of the family. The young miss between the ages of five and twelve is smartly clad this season in the present modish manner—her skirts are short to the extreme, her knees plainly showing—the silhouette, while varied, generally incorporates the waistline and the wide skirt, although in the width of the hem and the position of the waistline there is still room for choice.

This certainly is the first year that this young lady has been taken seriously. She is not put into a frock in the morning for play and into a similar, though fresh, one in the evening for dinner. The importance of the occasion has descended to this lowest age of all, and your youngest sister has a dress for morning, one for afternoon, and one for more formal wear—dinner or party. And her accessories change accordingly; she may wear sandals in the morning and for play, but with her "best" dress she will wear patent leather pumps with dainty round toes and sometimes buckles.

While looser in outline than those of the grown-ups, the children's dresses this year are trimmed with almost equal elaboration. A good deal of smocking is seen, especially in brightly contrasting colors, touches appearing at the neck, cuffs, pockets and empire yokes. Embroidery is frequent in silk or wool, depending on the function of the frock, while yokes, belts of fancy leathers, crocheted buttons and other novel additions would captivate the most blasé child in the country. Planted ruffles are an occasional treatment, while insets and collars of lace are very dainty on the party frocks. Pockets placed a surprisingly brief distance above the hem are often cut in curious shapes, and trimmed in an original fashion with ruffles and embroidery.

Sleeves may be long or short—the tots choose them short, so that they will not interfere with their mysterious and important activities, while the more mature imitate their elders by adhering to the long sleeve. Materials vary—simple play costumes appear in printed cottons for the very youngest, flannel and jersey for the little girl of school age. For party wear, however, the fabrics are closely akin to those used in adults' clothing—georgettes in soft color or white—crepe de chine, tulle, taffeta or satin.

To such an extent indeed has this sophistication become the dominant note in the little maid's wardrobe, at least in her party frocks, that the Paris tres jolies filles have gone so far as to adopt the square fringed shawls assumed by the older generation for evening wear. The smart Parisiennes, aged three, now wrap themselves in squares of silk crepe covered with Italian wool embroidery.

Chinese Embroidery Enhances Faile Dress

This beautiful gown of lettuce green seeded faille is trimmed with black and white Chinese embroidery. The hat is of the leghorn type, with flowers stitched in the same shade of green.

Variety of Colors for Women's Day-Time Frocks

Soft greens and very light tans are fashionable colors for silk day-time frocks. Sometimes three tones of green are combined in the fashionable composite color schemes. Such hues as pistache, gooseberry green and palmetto, are pale greens, just the color of spring foliage. The tans include light ecru, such as Mother Goose and monkey skin, a pinkish beige tone, Cornsilk yellow, a light gold, is used for many silk dresses by leading designers. Black and white plaid skirts will be worn with Castilian red jumpers for court wear.

DOUGLAS FIR TREE MAKES MOVING HOME

Large Log Nine Feet Across is Hollowed Out and Makes House on Truck.

When E. A. Wade, formerly a Mississippi valley farmer, but in recent years a resident of Washington state, decided to come back to the central states for a visit, he went into the forests of the Pacific northwest, got a big Douglas fir log, hollowed it out and made his own traveling home. Mounting this on a ton and a half truck and trailer he bundled Mrs. Wade and the family possessions inside and took to the highways. This unusual home, 16 feet long and nine feet high, is a comfortable two room apartment on wheels and was in this city Tuesday.

This, is the largest log ever seen in this section, is arousing great interest everywhere, Wade said, especially with school children and their teachers. When we found, while traveling in California, that his home created such a sensation among children and the school authorities, he collected some special forestry information, pictures, samples of west coast woods, and prepared a lecture.

Now when he gets in the neighborhood of a school he stops and gives the youngsters a treat.

The tree, a Douglas fir, from which Wade took the log for his house, grew in the Grays Harbor country of western Washington. It furnished nine more logs, each 22 feet in length. This tree was 311 feet high and contained about 50,000 board feet of lumber. The Wades have named their house "Columbus" because the tree was found to be 434 years old, having started to grow the year America was discovered.

The 9x16 foot log from which Wade made his home on wheels contained 6,580 board feet of lumber, nearly all heartwood. First, a two-inch hole was bored thru the center, then a four foot hole was burned. An electric buzz saw and wedges were then used. The job was finished with adzes.

The interior was then transformed into a modern two room apartment with built-in breakfast nook, cupboard, and wardrobe. Two beds fold up against the wall and there are electric lights and an oil stove for cooking.

Big trees like one from which Wade made his home are not unusual in the Pacific northwest and some are much larger than this one. The forest service measured one Douglas fir last fall near Mineral, Washington that was 15 feet, four inches in diameter and more than 1000 years old.

THE LIVE WIRE SEWING CLUB HAD MEETING

Good Program Was Rendered --Next Meeting Will be on July 10 in Williamsport.

The sixth meeting of the Live Wire Sewing club, of Deercreek and Wayne townships, was held at Mt. Pleasant church, July 6.

The meeting was called to order by President Mildred Warner. Ten members present answered roll call by naming a game. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved by the club.

After the business session a program was given; Song, club demonstrations, Elizabeth Warner, Mildred Nobel and Claribel Rihl. The club pledge was then given by the members.

The next meeting will be held at the Williamsport school building Tuesday afternoon, July 19. After the meeting everyone adjourned to the yard where games were enjoyed by all.

Airplane's Slowest Speed

The lowest rate of speed at which an airplane can travel and stay in the air would depend upon the plane. Roughly, it would be from 40 to 50 miles per hour. The lowest air speed is that speed just above the starting point. The stalling point is at the point where the air lift on the wings is less than the weight of the airplane, practically little above take-off speed, which is 40 to 50 miles.

AMUSEMENTS

The Metropolitan screen is the proud possessor of a first rate melodrama this week. "Blind Alleys," presents a new departure for Tom Meighan but one in which he wins new honors. As the title suggests, "Blind Alleys" tells the tale of two people, how they become separated and then, after vainly walking thru various "blind alleys" finally find themselves reunited after all seems lost.

Frank Tuttle's latest Paramount production starts with a colorful Cuban wedding. Handsome young Dan Kirby and his beautiful sweetheart, Maria, are being united in the well known bonds of matrimony. Dan has triumphed over Julio Lachados. The happy couple arrive in New York and catastrophes start falling in their path.

An accident causes Dan to drop out of Maria's life and in the interval she almost loses her mind. Finally, she gets a clue as to his whereabouts and sets out—only to become involved with a gang of thieves who promptly hie her away to an empty shack. Dan leaves his hospital room loses consciousness and wakes up in a shady boarding house.

Oh and that just starts to tell of the thrills in store. As an example of entertaining, melodrama, Author Owen Davis has created a winner in "Blind Alleys." Greta Nisson is the bride and Evelyn Brent the mysterious "other woman."

PICKAWAY CLUB ENJOYED GOOD PICNIC LUNCH

Interesting Time Was Had in Scoring Work Done and Making Their Plans.

The Pickaway Township 4-H Clothing club held its seventh meeting at the school house, July 8. A most interesting time was had in scoring the finished garments, also a better understanding of the work that the judges have to do at the coming contest in October, and we trust a true club spirit on our part.

There was much planning and thought for various activities and we are glad to have the sewing out of way in order to have time for these. Mary E. Rader gave an interesting demonstration on altering patterns.

A penny drill increased the amount in our treasury 12 cents.

Devotionals in charge of the leader. After a hard morning's work the picnic lunch with all of its fun, brings renewed energy for the afternoon tasks. The recreation committee is very active. The comments of the critics were favorable.

Will Raise $850,000

An expedition that kindles the imagination is one that will put to sea from San Diego this summer in an effort to raise a ship sunk off the California coast in 1905, when the Brother Jonathan, laden with a government pay roll of $850,000 for Civil war soldiers, foundered. . . . The vessel has been definitely located, and it is thought that by means of recent improvements in methods of deep-sea diving the wreck can be reached and her strong boxes opened. It is said that war records which were aboard the craft would be of great benefit to the pension department should they prove to be decipherable.—New York Evening Post.

MOTOR CAMPING MADE PLEASURE
New York Grounds Are Well Policed and Rules Rigidly Enforced.

Motor camping would be an unlimited pleasure were all the camp sites as clean and free from rubbish as those in the New York state forest preserves, according to Earle B. Knox, writing in the Field and Stream Magazine.
The chief reason for the superiority of the New York camp grounds over those in many other parts of the country, Mr. Knox believes, lies in the fact that they are well policed and that rules are rigidly enforced.
Rules Are Outlined.
Some of these rules which enable the state to render the public the greatest possible service with these camps, lean-tos and open fireplaces, and at the same time keep them in harmony with their wild surroundings, are as follows:
1. No fires except for cooking, warmth or smudge purposes are permitted. No fire shall be lighted until all inflammable material is removed to prevent its spread.
2. Lighted matches, cigars, cigarettes or burning tobacco must not be deposited or left where they may cause fires.
3. No official sign posted, or statement maintained under permit, shall be defaced.
4. Peeling of bark or injuring trees is prohibited.
5. Dead or down wood may be used for fuel by temporary campers.
Sanitation Maintained.
6. Camps and adjacent grounds must be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition. Garbage and refuse must either be buried, removed, or burned. Waste materials must not be thrown into the waters, or waters polluted.
7. No tents (except canvas without platform) or wooden structures shall be erected or maintained in the forest preserve, except under written permission from the conservation commission. Tar paper shall not be used, except for roofs of open camps erected under a permit.
8. No one may claim particular site from year to year or the exclusive use of the same.
9. The use of the forest preserves or the improvements thereon for private revenues or commercial purposes is prohibited.
10. Any occupied tent or structure may be removed by the commission.
11. All campers will be held responsible for compliance with these rules, and any person responsible for injury of state property will be held liable for damages and penalty.

Perfect Drivers Great Menace in Large Cities
The mediocre automobile driver must save the traffic situation in our large cities today, says a traffic expert.
The inferior and the perfect drivers are causing all the difficulties and are responsible for accidents and traffic tieups.
It is not difficult to understand how the inferior driver causes accidents to his own and other machines, but the "perfect" driver appears too perfect to be blamed.
The "perfect" driver never gets into an accident himself. He never violates a traffic rule. He never gives vociferous traffic cops a chance to enjoy themselves at his expense.
The "perfect" driver careens down the street just to and not exceeding the maximum traffic speed limit. Pedestrians see him a block away, and even if they have the right of way they hesitate to cross the street as the "perfect" driver speeds toward the crossing.
However, he makes a "perfect" stop just to and not beyond the danger line, breaking no traffic laws but frightening pedestrians so that they fear to cross the street while they have a chance.
The "perfect" driver is always right. He is so absolutely and recklessly right that other drivers and pedestrians fear him. He is the most disrupting element in the traffic situation.

Auto Lock Is Invented for Forgetful Drivers
Locks to safeguard automobile drivers against their own carelessness are being tested in the underwriters' laboratories at Chicago.
The forgetfulness of drivers of insured cars who park their cars unlocked and walk away with the feeling that the insurance company "can do the worrying" has induced the National Automobile Underwriters' conference to withdraw recognition of locking devices in the writing of insurance. To meet the situation a new lock is being developed.
The new lock is so designed that when the driver switches off the ignition to stop the engine he automatically locks the car. Few drivers, insurance companies find, are in the habit of forgetting that an engine needs gasoline to keep running. The breaking of the ignition circuit is almost a subconscious operation with the average driver.
The laboratories have recognized a number of locks so made that the mechanism which breaks the circuit also locks the car, but this lock is the first that performs both operations at the same time.

American Diplomat Will Not Junk Old Machines
Larz Anderson, American diplomat of Brookline, Mass., believes that automobiles have personalities just like horses and refuses to junk any car he ever owned. Buying cars since the year one of automobile history, Anderson has probably the greatest assortment of types, special bodies, motors and what-not to be found in the world on his estate, "Weld." Around the whitewashed walls of the garage hang the portraits of this notable motor family. Each has its photograph taken in the days of its prime.

NO BOTTOM FOUND TO MARBLE CAVE
In the Sangre de Cristo range in Colorado is Marble cave, an unexplored and bottomless pit.
Scientists are of the belief that it is the opening to a volcano that was active many millions of years ago.
In the same range is the Medano river, known as the "disappearing river," for it is a stream in one part of the forest and then it disappears to reappear many miles away.
The Sangre de Cristos are remarkable for many other freaks. Twenty miles south of Westcliff is a vast red sandstone bed where fossils are found of early sea life, indicative of that far period when this great inland range of mountains was the bottom of the sea. This bed has been of especial interest to geologists and scientists, and students interested in the formation of the world.
The range is the longest, straightest and highest in the United States and the most spectacularly colored, with 100 peaks from whose summit the snow never leaves.

Crow's Peculiarities
So far as scientists have been able to ascertain there is only one counterfeiter in the animal kingdom. This is the English cuckoo. It was so classified because it lays eggs, cleverly disguised, in other birds' nests. Although crows are thieves at heart they hold court in which they try their own criminals. At the close of the court two or more crows fall upon the culprit and punish him.—Exchange.

For This Once Mandy
Had to Compromise

Mandy was an incurable optimist and the embodiment of kindness. She would never admit that anything was wrong with anyone, although sometimes facts pushed her hard. Her young mistress had many suitors, and the latest recruit to the ranks could boast as little in the way of good looks as was humanly possible. "Grand looking chap, isn't he, Mandy?" queried Miss Marie's mischievous brother when the guest had departed. Mandy teetered perilously between truth and charity. "Co'se he was," she answered presently with dignity. "Han'some gennulman—han'some gennulman." At that point honesty got the upper hand. "Ceptin'," she added conscientiously, "fo' his features."

Finally Come Through With a Win at West Jefferson.

After a long hitting famine the Eagle team got busy with their war clubs Sunday at West Jefferson and bunched enough blows off of Longshore in the first and fifth innings to win a 7 to 6 decision.

The battle was interesting and exciting with some nice ball shown in spots and some more that was not so nice.

Doggy Taylor did the flinging for the Birds and kept the West Jefferson blows well separated but was very wild, granting nine free trips to first and materially assisting the home team in piling up their half dozen markers.

Hits by H. Miller, Terry, Targee and Briggs gave the Circleville team a pair of runs in the first and in the fifth the team batted around, gathering in five more counters.

In this frame McLaughlin, Terry, Targee, O. Miller and Taylor all hit safely and H. Miller and Thompson were given free passes.

For the home team Catcher Berger was the big noise at bat, getting three doubles, a single and a walk in five trips to the plate.

Lone Doughboy Buried
in Rumanian Mound

Bukharest, Rumania.—A solitary American doughboy is buried in the cemetery of Bellu here where Rumania places her distinguished military dead.

He is Edward Newell Ware, first-class private in the United States army from 1892 to 1919. He died of sickness while working with the American relief administration in Rumania.

Rumania never forgets the presence of this lone soldier on alien soil. On the day when the soldier dead are honored flowers are always placed upon his grave.

Cure Alfalfa in Windrow or Cock

Feeding Value Increased
Because More of Leaves Are Retained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is a popular belief that alfalfa and other hays cure more rapidly when handled so as to keep the leaves in a fresh condition until the stems have lost much of their moisture. This belief rests on the assumption that so long as the leaves are not dry they continue to draw or pump the moisture from the stems. It is partly because of this theory that curing in the windrow has been so commonly advocated, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Retains More Leaves.

It is generally recognized that hay cured in the windrow or cock does retain more of its leaves, thereby increasing its feeding value. So far as can be ascertained, however, no experiments have hitherto been conducted to determine whether or not the leaves actually aid in removing water from the stems. With this in mind some tests were begun in 1924 and continued in 1925 by department investigators, the results of which are discussed in Department Bulletin No. 1424-D.

Samples of alfalfa were taken and weighed immediately. Some of them were left to cure in the natural condition—that is, with the leaves on—while the leaves were picked from others by hand. Weighings were made at intervals to determine the rapidity with which the various samples lost their moisture.

In every case where the leaves were removed from the stems the alfalfa dried out somewhat more rapidly than where it was allowed to cure in its natural state; that is, with the leaves on. The difference was not great and just how much of this is due to handling cannot be easily determined. However, it is perfectly clear from the data that alfalfa in the quantities used in the tests cures at least as rapidly with leaves removed as with them attached, which is contrary to the popular belief.

Fallacy of Popular Theory.

These extensive tests would seem to indicate the fallacy of the popular theory concerning the pumping action of the leaves, but this need not necessarily change the practice of curing hay in the windrow or cock. Some other explanation must be made for the beneficial results of the practice, however.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Control Cabbage Worms
With Arsenate Mixture

Cabbage worms and cabbage aphids usually make their appearance about this season of the year in more or less destructive numbers. Farmers, truck crop growers and backyard gardeners will find a cheap and effective remedy for controlling the pests in the use of lead arsenate and nicotine.

The most effective mixture is one containing 15 parts of powdered lead arsenate to 100 parts of hydrated lime. This is dusted on the plants and does not in any way impair the use of the cabbage for human food, it is said.

Repeated doses of the poison dust are necessary during the season, particularly when the heads are forming, if effective control is to be secured.

Where cabbage aphids are present in any appreciable numbers, it is suggested that 1 per cent nicotine be added to the poison dust. This will rid the plants of the lice at the same time that protection is provided against the ravages of the cabbage worms.

Sweet Corn Is Ambition of Every Home Gardener

Sweet corn is the ambition of every home gardener. Only home-grown corn is really sweet. Corn from the market, while excellent as food, has lost the sugar content before it can come to the table. Fresh picked corn alone retains the sugary quality which makes it the most popular summer vegetable.

Removed from the stalk, a chemical change starts which turns the sugar into starch and the corn has a corn taste but not a sweet one if it remains four hours before going into the kettle, for scientists tell us that this changing of sugar into starch is accomplished in about that time. That is why a suspicious, so often arises that sweet corn sold in the market is field corn or, as it is often called, "horse corn." It was sweet corn once. Time has stolen the sweetness.

Silage Made From Shock
Corn With Plenty of Water

Good silage can be made from shock corn provided enough water is run in the silo while the filling is done to wet the silage enough so that it will properly pack to exclude the air.

The best way to put the water into the silo is to pump it directly into the distributing pipe while the filler is running. Where this cannot be done the water must be hauled in a tank and then run directly into the fan of the filler. After the filling is completed more water should be pumped onto the silage provided it can be done.

New York.—Aliens are being smuggled into the United States faster than federal authorities can apprehend and deport them, Representative Milton W. Shreve of Erie, Pa., member of a special committee investigating conditions at Ellis Island declared.

Other members of the committee, including Representatives William B. Oliver, Alabama and Anthony J. Griffin, New York; Robert C. White, assistant secretary of labor, and Melvin Jones, assistant to the director of the budget, agreed with Shreve that thousands of aliens were smuggling themselves into the country along the seaboard and land boundary lines. The Florida coast, they said, presented the most difficult problem on account of its proximity to Cuba.

Thirty thousand seamen entered the United States by deserting their ships in American ports during the last 12 months, members of the committee said.

LOANS UP TO $500

Consider the silver dollar. It is cold hard cash. It is not made of rubber because it was never intended to be stretched. Neither can it be bounced around to ten or fifteen different places at one time. Such a thing is a "metallic impossibility." But when you have a considerable number of them coming into your hands every week or month, you are in a position to command a certain credit. With The City Loan this means that you can borrow plenty of dollars to pass around to everyone you owe. INDIANS HAVE NO SINGLE RELIGION

Beliefs Among Various Tribes Differ.

Washington.—Nearly 100,000 Indians in the United States are untouched by Christian doctrines, the board of Indian commissioners recently estimated, and remain to all intents and purposes pagans, presumably still holding in large measure the beliefs of their ancestors. What these primitive Indian religious beliefs are is told in a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Poetic fancy and a natural tendency to describe newly encountered beliefs and customs in terms of those already familiar have given white people many false ideas in regard to the religious beliefs of the American Indians," says the bulletin. "Some enthusiasts have pictured the typical red man as noble and ethical beyond his white brother, believing in a fatherly 'Great Spirit' and striving to live the good life that he may go after death to the 'Happy Hunting Ground.' This is a fallacy.

Have No Single Religion.

"There is no single religion of the American Indians. Instead the beliefs differed widely in different sections and among different tribes. There was, however, a general similarity of views, and these were about what could have been expected from people of a relatively primitive degree of culture. Nowhere does what could truly be called the conception of a 'Great Spirit,' an overruling deity, emerge.

"There were greater and lesser spirits, to be sure, but the characteristic Indian belief is in a multitude of spirits animating animals, objects and the various forces of nature. Nor were these spirits inherently good or bad, morally. They might help or hinder the individual in his activities or health, and whether they did the one or the other was the test of their 'goodness' or 'badness' for him.

"The primitive Indian has no conception of a hell; nor is his entry into the spirit land dependent on his conduct. He enters it as a matter of course, he believes, and continues there whatever activities have interested him in this life. To some tribes this is a 'skyland,' to others it is merely a region of the earth, 'in the west,' 'across the sea,' or 'beyond a river.' Others believe the villages of the dead to be near their villages but invisible.

Believe in Magic.

"Coupled in the mind of the primitive Indian with a belief in many spirits is a belief in magic, through which the spirits can be influenced. The medicine men possessed the secrets of such magic, it was believed, and often interceded. All Indians believe in the possession of a soul which leaves the body at death. They also believe that it leaves at other times, and some tribes ascribe illness to this absence of the soul. The services of the medicine man are sought to recover the missing soul. Belief in a continuing soul did not lead to ancestor worship as among Eastern peoples.

"Most Indian mythologies do not concern themselves with creation; they assume the existence of the earth and deal with its peopling and with the origin of arts, customs and rites. All these are supposed to have come by a sort of revelation.

"Some tribes, however, especially those of the Pacific coast region, do have a creation myth. In some it is 'Old Man Above,' in others an animal such as the coyote or the silver fox, who makes a hole in the sky, comes to earth and creates the animals and men. In some of these myths there is only water beneath the sky, but the descending being creates the earth in the form of an island which grows.

Morality Well Developed.

"Morality and ethics were well developed among American Indians. They have a strong sense of conscience and many individuals are strikingly benevolent. The tribal morality was strict. He who lied, failed to keep his promises, or stole within the tribe was disgraced. Murder, too, was punished. War removed ethical barriers among Indians as it has among most people in all ages. It then became a virtue for the Indian to kill his enemies and to take their property.

"On the whole, the Indian's religious beliefs may be described as being wholly practical and as springing from fear of the more or less hostile forces of nature that surround him. His various rites arose from his efforts to propitiate or to take advantage of these forces."

Form "Cavalry Troop" in China; Use Ponies

Washington.—Lacking a cavalry troop and feeling that one might be useful, officers of the Fifteenth United States infantry, guarding part of the Tientsin-Peking railway in China, have improvised a mounted outfit with their foot soldiers.

One officer and thirty-four men of the headquarters company were told off for this duty. Their mounts are Mongolian ponies, which range from 13 to 14 hands in height and average about 700 pounds in weight.

The Fifteenth infantry headquarters company platoon has been trained by Capt. H. M. Henderson in horsemanship, cavalry drill, patrolling, and street fighting, with frequent practice marches of 18 to 40 miles.
